

Explosion Mars Cooling Off at U. of Kansas

Building of Credit Bureau Has Hole Blasted in Wall

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A brief calm in this university city — scene of two gunfire deaths in less than a week — was shattered early today by an explosion near an area where there have been repeated confrontations between police and a group of youths.

The blast knocked a two-foot hole in a wall of the Credit Bureau building and shattered windows in residences more than 100 yards away. There were no injuries.

Robert Wolfe of the Kansas fire marshal's office said, "We've found fragments of a soap detergent box. We feel certain it was packed with black powder though the stuff will be analyzed."

The incident marred a "let's cool it" understanding between Kansas Highway Patrol Supt. William Albott; George Kimball, leader of a group living at the edge of the University of Kansas campus who refer to themselves as "the street people," and a number of campus ministers, students and faculty members.

Police Absence
Albott had told Kimball and the Rev. Donald Conrad, a Lutheran campus minister, Tuesday night that police would stay out of the area if all remained quiet.

The area at the north edge of the campus was the scene of a confrontation Monday night in which Harry Nicholas Rice, 18, was struck and killed by a bullet while running with a group of the "street people" from police.

There was no official indication where the shot came from. The confrontation marked the fourth straight night in which some students from the university, some former students and other young people sharing a hippie-style environment had brought out police and firemen by setting trash fires and creating disturbances.

Fatal Shooting
Many of the youths said the activity was a protest against the fatal shooting of Donald Rick Dowdell, 19, a Negro, last Thursday night in the black community. Police said he was fleeing from officers and was shot when he stepped from a car with a gun in his hand.

Gov. Robert Docking made a surprise visit to the troubled area Tuesday.

He met with city officials and later issued a proclamation of emergency which forbids the "possession, sale, carrying and use of firearms and other dangerous weapons" and restricts the sale of gasoline except for motor vehicles.

Docking also ordered 25 highway patrol troopers into Lawrence to assist police.

Consumer Boycott Threatened For Better Migrant Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer watchdog group has threatened to lead a boycott against famous-name companies such as Coca-Cola unless the firms act immediately to improve the working and living conditions of migrant farm laborers.

Philip W. Moore, counsel to Ralph Nader's Project on Corporate Responsibility, accused the soft drink firm of exploiting Mexican-Americans in testimony Tuesday before the Senate migratory labor subcommittee.

Whether the boycott will be put into effect, he added, will depend on the firm's testimony before the same panel later this week. Moore said he thought "Coca-Cola wants to do something to avoid this problem."

Substandard Housing
Moore pointed to what he said was substandard housing Coca Cola's Minute Maid subsidiary maintained for its workers in Florida citrus fields as examples of "this problem."

The subcommittee, headed by Minnesota Democrat Walter F. Mondale, has invited Coca Cola representatives to testify when the hearings resume Friday.

In other testimony, the Senate Democratic nominee from Texas, Lloyd Bentsen, was described by two witnesses as a wealthy "exploiter" of migratory farm workers.

Bentsen, who faces Republican

George Bush in the November election, denied he or his family-owned corporation had ever exploited farm workers in the Rio Grande Valley.

Bentsen's family has extensive land holdings in the region, Moore charged, and said that, with other family-owned corporations, they "have failed in the last 20 years to take any meaningful step to eliminate the conditions which their corporate decisions impose daily on the lives of migrant workers."

Wealthy "Exploiters"
Roger M. Dunwell, a lawyer from New York who worked last year with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee in Mission, Tex., named both Bentsen and former Texas Gov. Allen Shivers as among the wealthy exploiters in the valley. Mondale noted Moore's testimony was the first about the intricacies of corporate ownership of the fields that often isolates migrants at the bottom of society.

"It's possible to get rich on poverty these days," he said. When talking about human exploitation, however, Mondale said the exploiters must be exposed and the situation must be corrected.

Cost of Product
"The cost of a decent life ought to be incorporated in the cost of every product," he said.

Massachusetts Asks Ruling on War's Legality

Constitutionality Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state of Massachusetts urged the Supreme Court today to rule that participation of the United States in the Vietnam war is unconstitutional.

In a suit that named Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird as defendant, the state said the executive branch of the federal government is acting illegally in committing American troops to the Southeast Asia war.

The plea for a ruling was authorized by the state legislature in April when it approved a bill challenging the federal government's authority to conduct undeclared wars such as Vietnam.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent, a Republican, signed the bill into law immediately and the state attorney general, Robert H. Quinn, a Democrat, followed up with a suit in the high court.

The central legal point the state is pressing is that without a declaration of war by Congress, the President is acting unconstitutionally when he sends troops into Vietnam to fight.

Accept Suit
Before the court could rule on this issue it would have to decide whether it will accept the Massachusetts suit. It was filed directly in the Supreme Court instead of coming to the court in the form of an appeal from a lower court decision.

The Supreme Court has consistently refused up to now to consider appeals in which the legality of the Vietnam War was questioned. Two justices, William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart, have dissented from this refusal.

For Massachusetts to win even a hearing the state will need the acquiescence of at least four of the nine justices.

Quinn's brief seeks to overcome resistance within the court to grappling with this issue. He said, "This court has indicated in the past that it will not sidestep a question merely because it is controversial."

Besides, he added, "Since this court is the only body which can resolve the present controversy definitively, it must do so."

In an interview, the attorney general explained why he was suing in the Supreme Court instead of at a lower judicial level.

Quick Action
"We want it done quickly," he said. "Also we hope this suit will serve as a catalyst to prompt action by the legislative and executive branches."

As for his personal views of the war, Quinn said: "the more research we do in the case, the more convinced we are of the validity of our argument—the Vietnam War cannot be fought by executive fiat."

The Massachusetts law seeks to bar service by Massachusetts residents in war zones in the absence of a congressional declaration of war.

In the brief, Quinn said: "Review of the pertinent portions of the debates of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 demonstrates conclusive that ultimate control over the military was accorded to Congress by the exclusive grant of war-making power to that branch."

Repel Attacks
"The debates do not indicate that the power accorded the president to repel sudden attacks can be used as authorization for the present level of military commitment on the part of the United States in Vietnam."

"Furthermore, there is nothing in the President's other powers such as those incident to his role as commander-in-chief or chief executive which would authorize the acts and actions of the executive branch in committing the United States to fight in Vietnam."

"The Commonwealth concludes by reviewing various congressional actions, including the so-called Gulf of Tonkin resolution and appropriations measures, and argues that none of those actions manifests an intent on the part of Congress to authorize or ratify the level of hostilities in which the United States has engaged in Vietnam."

The state law provides that Massachusetts servicemen may refuse duty unless there has been a declaration of war by Congress.

Last month, a draftee from Walpole, Mass., challenged the Army's authority to send him to Vietnam in the face of the Massachusetts law.

Two justices, William J. Brennan Jr., and Byron R. White dissented to block shipment of the soldier, William A. Bain.

Commandos Seize Jetliner in Athens

ATHENS (AP) — Arab commandos seized an Olympic Airways jetliner with at least 61 persons aboard at Athens airport today and threatened to blow it up unless the Greek government released two Jordanians awaiting trial for a terror bombing.

Aristotle Onassis, owner of the airline, came to the airport, spent a half hour in the control tower and left, authorities said.

An airline spokesman in Beirut, said the plane left the Lebanese capital earlier with 53 passengers including five Americans, four Greeks, three French and one Australian.

Stylanos Patokas, the No. 2 man in the Greek regime, rushed to the airport control tower with several Arab ambassadors as police ringed the Olympic Airways Boeing 727 on the runway.

The commandos, armed with machine guns and hand grenades, were reported to have demanded the release of the Jordanians within three hours.

The plane—of Aristotle Onassis' airline—came from Beirut, and the manager of the airline there said most of the passengers were Greek or Lebanese.

"But there were three Syrians aboard, and these may well be the hijackers," he added.

The commandos were probably members of the leftist Palestine Popular Struggle Front, said a spokesman in Beirut for the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. The two Jordanians held in Athens are members of the Struggle Front.

However, in Amman, a spokesman for the Struggle Front said, "We know nothing about this. We have nothing to do with this."

Huey Newton in prison.

Imprisoned Huey Newton Still Policymaker

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — From behind the 14-foot fences and steel bars of a state prison, Huey P. Newton guides the militant Black Panther party toward what he envisions as a revolution within his lifetime.

"I decide the final policy on everything in the party," said Newton, Panther co-founder and minister of defense. "I communicate with the party through visits by my family."

The smiling, soft-spoken Newton, 28, has spent the past 2½ years in prison for killing an Oakland policeman. He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years for the Oct. 28, 1967, shooting of officer John Frey.

New Trial
On May 21 the California District Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on ground that the Superior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors.

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."

"But I am optimistic about winning the final battle because the people always win."

As the Panthers' chief theoretician, Newton said revolution has constantly occupied his mind at the California Men's Colony, a sprawling medium security prison at the foot of coastal hills near here.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover recently called the Black Panthers the nation's most dangerous organization and accused it of fomenting terrorism in cities and on campuses.

Newton commented, "The most dangerous groups to the people of the world are the Pentagon including the CIA, the U.S. military, the local police, the avaricious businessman and the living politicians."

All are guilty of crimes against the people and the victim is death."

A party poster picturing Newton on an African wicker throne bearing a shotgun and a spear has been sold nationally. But he said, "I'm against violence. I'm not a violent man. All revolutionaries are against violence."

There's a distinction between the violence of the aggressor and the self-defense of the attacked.

We must defend ourselves against poor housing, police brutality and all things that strip a man of his dignity."

As for the poster, he said laughing, "I don't think the party's image has changed since then, but I hope mine has. I don't like that particular poster because it makes me look like a monarch. We have a democratic party."

Newton said his primary goals include the freedom of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale, charged with murder of a Panther in New Haven, Conn. and the safe return to the United States of Eldridge Cleaver, Panther minister of information who has been a fugitive since he

State Urges Explicit Labels On Foodstuffs

Assembly Drive Seeks Stronger U.S. Products Standards

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A drive to persuade the federal government to strengthen its food products standards by including requirements for explicit ingredient labeling for the guidance of the consumer has been started by the Agriculture Committee of the Wisconsin Assembly.

State Rep. Norbert Nuttleman, R-La Crosse, presiding at a session of the committee here, said he is encouraged by the support for the proposal recently tendered at a meeting of the Midwestern Conference of the Council of State Governments.

Nuttleman said the responsibility for consumer information on the ingredients of food rests with the national government, because most food moves in interstate commerce.

Support for Idea
Technical specialists representing the University of Wisconsin and the state department of Agriculture supported the idea of more strict labeling requirements by the national government. Dr. Henry Scott of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation noted that the state and federal governments now have food standards requirements, but said that the consumer should have direct information about the ingredients in foods on the market.

The mostly rural members of the Legislative Interim Study Committee indicated that ingredient labeling is justified on general grounds, but noted that the need is especially urgent for some individual consumers. Some persons suffer from allergies, legislators said, and are entitled to know the contents of food on the market for their protection.

Committee members also found some of the present labeling rules of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration inadequate.

Label Requirements
They pointed out that "imitation hams" are required to carry a label showing water content if it reaches 10 per cent, but that hams with a larger content of water are also sold as "imitation" hams without the volume of water specified.

Such hams are typically sliced for retail sale, without labeling, with the result that the buyer is unaware of the water ingredient, it was said.

Several witnesses while supporting the idea of complete ingredient labeling of all foodstuffs, including beverages, said that it would not afford complete information guarantees to the consumer.

About one-third of all the meals consumed in America are served to persons away from home, as they travel, or as they are served in institutions, it was pointed out.

Oshkosh Man Gets 6 Years

Forged 15 Checks In Three Counties During May, June

A 31-year-old Oshkosh man was sentenced to six years in the state prison at Waupun Tuesday on 15 counts of check forgery.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell ordered the term for James L. Veach, who pleaded guilty Tuesday to 11 charges of forgery consolidated from Winnebago and Fond du Lac Counties.

Veach previously pleaded guilty to four forgery counts brought against him in Outagamie County.

Fifteen checks in all — totaling $400.70 and forged by Veach between May 25 and June 8 — were considered by Parnell Tuesday.

The four forged checks in this county were cashed early in June at four businesses in the Town of Hortonville. The others were issued at food stores, service stations and taverns in Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties.

Brian Zink, 24, Oshkosh, was previously placed on three years probation with the State Department of Health and Social Services for cashing the checks forged by Veach.

Mercury Still Found in Fish

Tests Offer Little Hope for Ban on Wisconsin River

MADISON (AP)—Samples of fish taken from the Wisconsin River gave little hope the stream will have its "fishing for fun only" ban lifted this summer, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has reported.

Preliminary results show that mercury pollution of the stream is still high enough that the one meal a week restriction on Wisconsin River fish will not be lifted, Francis Schraufnagel, DNR director of standards and surveys, said Tuesday.

A ban on all fishing on the stream was issued May 4 by Gov. Warren P. Knowles after tests showed dangerous concentrations of mercury in the river which were later traced to the Wyandotte Chemical Corp. plant in Port Edwards.

The mercury pollution was later reduced by some 99 per cent by the company and the ban was modified to recommend only one meal per week from Wisconsin River fish.

The department has announced it will conduct a series of public hearings in August aimed at establishing statewide standards for mercury pollution control.

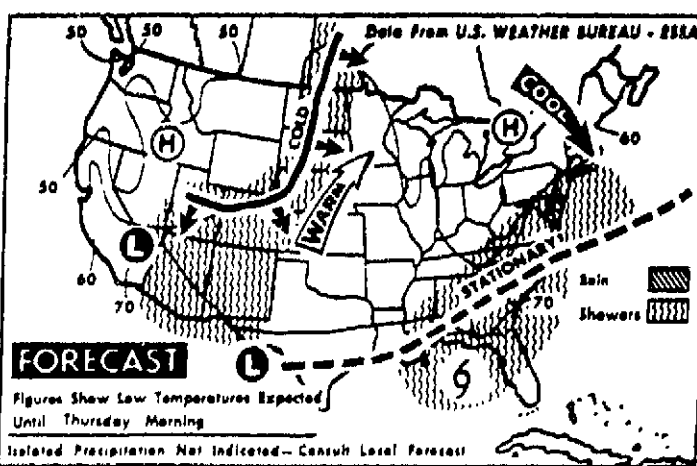

Appleton Man Named To Council for Aged

Robert J. Bastian of Peabody Manor has been named to the Legislative Concerns Committee of the Wisconsin Council of Homes for the Aged.

The statewide group is concerned with nonprofit homes for the aging and provides information on current practices and services to member homes, legislators and the public. Bastian's committee develops recommendations to the council board on legislative policy

3 Appleton Attorneys On State Bar Groups

Three Appleton attorneys will serve on State Bar of Wisconsin committees during 1970-71, according to Prof. James D. Ghiardi, Milwaukee, State Bar president.

They are: Don R. Herrling, legislation; John G. Wylie, professional ethics, and Walter H. Brummund, world peace through law and economics.

Others from this area that are named to committees are Charles E. Schaller, Neenah, interprofessional and business relations, and Richard J. Stefens, Menasha, legal education and Bar admissions.

Police & Fire Beat

Robert Schroeder, 46, route 3, Appleton, was fined $150 and costs Tuesday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. He pleaded guilty. County Judge Nick F. Schaefer revoked his driver's license for 90 days. Schroeder was cited June 28 at the corner of State Highways 156 and 47 after a property damage accident. A state patrolman made the arrest.

Sixty days in the Outagamie County jail under the Huber Law were ordered Tuesday for Harry Baird, 26, Green Bay, who was charged June 1 with driving while intoxicated and while his license was revoked in the 100 block of S. Appleton Street. He had been involved in an accident.

Baird pleaded guilty to the charges Tuesday in County Court Branch 2. Additionally, he was fined $150 and costs by County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, and ordered to serve two extra days in the county jail for failure to submit to a breathalyzer test. His driving rights were revoked for an additional year.

Charges against Richard Melchert, route 1, Black Creek, were dropped Tuesday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. He had been charged with reckless use of a firearm in connection with a March 17 incident in Black Creek in which he allegedly shot a cat belonging to a Black Creek couple. Assistant Dist. Atty. Joel Seymour told the court the couple desired to drop the complaint against Melchert.

Court proceedings for Loyal M. Wilk, 30, 139 N. Locust St., were continued to Sept. 29 Tuesday for the purpose of review. Wilk, charged with disorderly conduct in connection with two counts of indecent exposure on March 17 and Oct. 17, was granted the time to continue with a physician's treatment.

The March count was brought after an incident in the 900 block of W. Elsie Street and the October charge after an incident in the parking lot at the Zwicker Knitting Mill. Wilk is free on bond.

Court proceedings for Thomas M. Wilk, 30, 314½ E. Main St., Little Chute, were continued to Tuesday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 after an attorney told the court he needed time to prepare the case. Spice allegedly cashed a $10 worthless check June 9 at Hal's Red Owl Store in Kaukauna. Bond of $100 has been posted.

KAUKAUNA — Police received a complaint from Hennes Trucking Co., Appleton, that three windows in a crane parked near the construction site of Victor Haen Elementary School were shot out with BB-guns sometime over the weekend.

LITTLE CHUTE — Steven Winius, 19, 149 N. Washington St., Kimberly, pleaded guilty of driving too fast to avoid a collision and leaving the scene of an accident when arraigned before Municipal Justice Raymond Sanders Monday night and was fined a total of $70.

The youth was arrested following a 1-car accident in which his car broke off a utility pole.

Francis Peay Sidelined by Nasal Surgery

Veteran Packer Tackle Won't be Ready for a Week

GREEN BAY — The Packers will be missing at least one veteran even if the National Football League lockout should end immediately.

Offensive tackle Francis Peay, a spectator at Tuesday's rookie practice, presently is recuperating from surgery to relieve a sinus condition and will not be ready to essay contact work for more than a week.

"I had surgery last Friday," Peay reported from a railbird seat while watching the fledglings perform. "I had polyps removed and a new passage cut to permit the sinuses to drain."

Kirby's Yanking in No-Hit Bid Upsets San Diego Crowd

BY TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was Clay Kirby's first brush with baseball immortality and he didn't want to leave but Preston Gomez had been there before. As usual the San Diego manager had the last word and Kirby was gone.

The mini-conflict occurred Tuesday night as the 23-year-old Kirby twirled eight no-hit innings against the New York

The Mets greeted reliever Jack Baldschun with three hits and a pair of runs in blanking the Padres 3-0 behind Jim McAndrew's three-hitter.

"He was coming out," said Gomez, "because I play to win. I knew he had a no-hitter going but we got to score some runs."

Boos Continue

The pinch hitter, Clarence Gaston batted for Kirby with the crowd of 10,373 in San Diego roaring its disapproval loudly with cries of "No, No, No." One fan jumped onto the field and attempted to get at the Padres dugout and Gomez. Security police, however, thwarted the spectator's attempt.

Holly Hurls 2-Hitter in Legion Test

Waupaca '9' Stops Neenah

NEW LONDON — John Holly (the only ones Bigalke issued) pitched 2-hit ball as Waupaca a fielder's choice and an out, posted a 4-1 Region 4 Legion field error allowed the runs. Baseball tournament won over Dennis Riddle's single ended the Neenah Tuesday at Hatten Stadium.

Bases Loaded
Tonight, host New London (4-9) meets Oshkosh (6-7) in the second game of the double bases full. With two outs, Wau elimination tournament Wau-paca shortstop Doug Peterson para faces Weyauwega-Fremont muffed an easy pop to allow Thursday. Both games are slated for 8 p.m.

Chuck Kroll hurled a 3-hitter with a single, an error by and Sturgeon Bay tallied the Bigalke and Bob Block's error game's lone run on an error in enabled Waupaca to plate a the bottom of the ninth to score single run in the seventh a 1-0 victory over Green Bay. Riddle collected his second hit East in the Sturgeon Bay sub of the game to lead off the regional Tuesday.

Loser Tim Bigalke pitched Bigalke's pick-off attempt sailed admirably for Neenah but was deep into the right field foul unable to overcome six fielding area errors — two his own — in the game.

Waupaca took a 2-0 lead in field wall, 450 feet away from the third on only one hit. A home, in the sixth but was cut ground-out, back-to-back walks down on a perfect relay throw

All-Star Game in Peril

By MIKE RECHT

NEW YORK (AP) — The College All-Star game, the pre-season schedule and possibly the entire season remained up in the air today as pro football owners continued their marathon meeting after failing to come up with any answers Tuesday in their dispute with the players.

The 26 club owners "touched on every aspect of the negotiations and no firm decision was made," said Lamar Hunt, owner of the Super Bowl Champion Kansas City Chiefs in a joint press conference with George Halas of the Chicago Bears after Tuesday's 11½ hour meeting.

He did say some decisions were expected today when the owners resumed their talks in a midtown hotel at 10 a. m. EDT. Certain to be discussed were: The pension plan for the players, which is the crux of the dispute with the National Football League Players Association.

Go To Washington?
Whether to send a representative to Washington tonight to join in a meeting between players' representatives and federal mediators.

—The College All-Star game, between the Chiefs and the All-Stars in Chicago July 31, which has been jeopardized with the Chiefs being unable to prepare for the game.

—The preseason schedule, which also has been threatened by the lockout by owners which has kept veteran players from organized practices which began for most teams this week.

—The regular season itself. "There was some discussion along those lines," replied Halas to a question concerning the possible cancelling of the entire pro football season. "A few owners did bring it up."

However, he shrugged off such talk as having little serious intention, but admitted it might be brought up again.

Hasn't Heard That

In another hotel across town, John Mackey, of Baltimore and the president of the NFLPA, said he had never heard anyone talk on those lines.

Hunt said he held out hope that his Chiefs still could play in the All-Star game noting that Kansas City Coach Hank Stram has said he could get the team ready if practice begins at least one week before the contest. That would be Friday.

If no settlement is reached, not only the All-Star game but the would be in trouble, but the pre-season contests as well as American League post. They start one week later. Aug 7.

Wildness Plagues Lockwood; Yankees Top Brewers, 4-2

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees haven't been called lucky for a long time, but they were just that Tuesday night and Manager Ralph Houk was the first to admit it.

"We've got to consider ourselves fortunate to win this one," Houk said after the Yanks took advantage of young Skip Lockwood's wildness for a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I wish I knew why a pitcher loses his control all of a sudden," sighed his opposite number, Dave Bristol.

The Brewers came up short although they out-hit the Yankees 10-4 and played errorless ball while the New Yorkers committed several miscues. Lockwood's wildness was the reason.

The 23-year-old right-hander, a former $100,000 bonus infielder with the Kansas City A's who turned to pitching two years ago, breezed through four innings with a 2-0 lead and sharp control.

But he walked Thurman Munson and Gene Michael to start the fifth and they were turned into the tying runs on a sacrifice, Horace Clarke's sacrifice fly and Jerry Kenney's single.

Trouble Again

An inning later, the bases were loaded on a walk to Roy White, Curt Blefary's infield hit, which Lockwood knocked down and then turned the wrong way to look for it, and another walk to Munson.

The tie-breaking run scored on a wild pitch and Michael delivered the final tally with a sacrifice fly off reliever Bob Humphreys.

The Brewers had micked Bafnson for a run in the first on two singles and an infield hit, and one in the fourth on Gerry McNertey's double and Ted Kubiak's single.

"From our reports," said Houk, "Lockwood has those wild innings, although this was the first time we've seen him. He's got a good arm, but he just lost it all at once."

"When you're in trouble is when you've got to reach back

Give Decatur 2-1 Victory

BY RON WITT

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

If the Appleton Foxes didn't have bad luck of late, they wouldn't have any at all.

Things were doubly gloomy at Goodland Field Tuesday night after the Foxes fell to their fifth straight defeat, 2-1, to Decatur's Commodores and then anxiously awaited word from Memorial Hospital on the condition of injured catcher Ron Davini.

Davini, it was learned later, suffered a cerebral concussion and cervical sprain (comparable to whiplash) when he was hit in the side of the head by an errant fastball thrown by Decatur pitcher Emille Rivera in the third inning.

It was reported from the hospital this morning that Davini is in good condition and in good spirits. He isn't expected to be hospitalized long.

The Appleton catcher, an All-Star in the Midwest League's first-half season, went down in a heap at the plate. He was carried from the field in a semi-conscious state and rushed to the hospital.

Ron Davini

It was a quirk of fate that Davini had entered the game at all, since Edito Arteaga was assigned to handle the catching chores this night. However, Davini came to the plate in the third as a pinch-hitter for shortstop Joe Monly, who became too ill to play after battling a stomach virus all day.

The injury to Davini complicates matters for the locals and manager Ira Hutchinson, who reported that the club is down to 10 players, excluding pitchers but including player-coach Jim Mahoney and newly-acquired Charley Kromer. Military stints by Jim Redmon and Ken Hottman, both of whom won't return to the Foxes until Monday, plus the releases of Dana Ryan and Jim McKershon have depleted the roster.

The ball game itself was another study in frustration for the Foxes, losers of six of their last seven outings. The setback left Appleton one full game back of Decatur in the second-half race.

Decatur centerfield Horace Speed was the chief cause of the Foxes' miseries as he powered two home runs to account for his team's scoring. Both homers were shots over the left field wall hit off loser Stan Perzanowski, one coming in the second and the other in the sixth that broke a 1-1 tie.

Leaves 10 Stranded
Appleton managed seven hits for the evening but left 10 men stranded, including three in the third frame when they loaded the bases with one out and failed to score.

The Foxes' lone marker was unearned and came in the fourth inning. Arteaga reached safely on an error by Commodore shortstop Gene Rinaldi, went to second on a Rivera fly pitch, and eventually raced

The horse is better than most 1970 cars.

We are not joking. The run-of-the-mill 1970 car is an affront to progress.

It's too expensive to buy. And too expensive to run. It's almost impossible to park, and maneuvering it through city traffic would try the nerves of a saint.

You'd be better off with a horse.

Which is sure-footed, inexpensive, maneuverable and it eats hay. Nice, cheap, hav.

We, at Renault, are one of the few automakers to make a car that's better than the horse.

The Renault 10.

Since it gets 35 miles to the gallon, it is cheap to run.

And since it has independent suspension and disc brakes, it is sure-footed and easy to stop.

And since it is manu-

verable, it is easy to park.

And it is also more comfortable than the horse.

The early days of training camp invariably are an awesome experience for the pro football rookie, far from the familiar college campus and longtime loyalists for the first time.

But Packer freshmen, like their counterparts around the National Football League, currently are somewhat more at sea than the usual yearling. With the veterans on an enforced vacation while the Great Debate raged in New York, they have had no way to accurately measure their progress.

The lockout has made the evaluation process particularly sticky for an athlete essaying a new position, such as Jim Carter, the erstwhile University of Minnesota full-back who finds himself at linebacker in Coach Phil Bengtson's camp.

"There's so much to learn," says Jim, who captained the Gophers in '69. "If Robbie (Dave Robinson) and Ray Nitschke were here, you'd learn by watching. We haven't put in any defenses yet, we've just been working on fundamentals."

Hearing on Firing Continues

Cronin Says 2 Umpires Didn't Keep Composure, Were Arrogant

BY STEVEN A. COHEN
BOSTON (AP)—Joe Cronin, president of the American League, was to resume testimony today at a National Labor Relations Board hearing into the firing of two league umpires in 1968.

The umpires, Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, were fired by Cronin because of alleged "incompetence." But they have filed an unfair labor practice suit contending that they were dismissed because they were trying to organize a union for league umpires.

Testifying Tuesday before Board Examiner David Davidson, Cronin cited "arrogance" as one reason leading up to the dismissal.

Valentine "could not keep an even temper," Cronin said, and Salerno "had been in trouble since the beginning of his career."

Cronin said he had no idea that American League umpires were talking about a union until "two or three days after they

Tight End at QB As Pack Keeps Training Slate

While the National Football League's pension talks kept veterans off the practice field, tight end Frank Patrick of Nebraska handled Tuesday's quarterback duties.

Frank Foreman, picked 12th from Michigan State, returned to drills. He broke a thumb in the door of a truck while hitchhiking a ride to the field Monday.

Bears Seek Injunction to Permit Dyche Stadium Use

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears, with 50,000 tickets already sold for the game, sought an injunction in Cook County (Chicago) Circuit Court Tuesday to permit use of Northwestern University's Dyche Stadium for their Sept. 27 contest with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Monday night, the Evanston City Council tabled by a 9-8 vote a resolution allowing use of Dyche Stadium for that National Football League home opener for the Bears.

The injunction suit was filed against the city of Evanston and Northwestern University, which previously obtained Big Ten permission to open Dyche Stadium to the Bears.

The suit charged that Northwestern was threatened by the city of Evanston with a lawsuit on the grounds that the game would violate a zoning ordinance banning Stadium use for "commercial purposes."

The Bears contend that if the zoning code prohibits playing of the game, it then is unconstitutional under the federal and state constitutions. The suit stressed the Bears cannot make refunds on tickets already paid for and that Wrigley Field, their normal base, could not accommodate the expected crowd for this game.

The Bears seek to play at free Dyche Stadium because Wrigley Field may be needed by the Chicago Cubs if they are in a

Jeannie Martin Takes 2 Firsts

Jeannie Martin won a pair of events in the 10-and-under class to pace the Appleton YMCA swim team in the recent Wisconsin Girls Junior Olympics Swimming and Diving meet at Waukesha.

Jeannie took firsts in the 1-meter diving and in the 100-meter freestyle. She also captured third place in the 200-meter freestyle. Marietta Martin placed third in the 100-meter breaststroke in the 13-and-14 class.

Barb Rudolf took fourths in both the 1-meter and 3-meter diving for 13-and-14-year-olds.

Appleton placed fourth in the 10-and-under 200-meter medley relay, as Robin Savage, Jenny Kading, Jane Rouman and Jeannie Martin formed the team. The Appleton unit of Ellen Savage, Amy Savage, Marietta Martin and Barb Pawlowski finished fourth in the 400-meter open medley relay.

Other fourths were garnered by Debbie Kichetski, 200-meter back; Robin Savage, 50-meter back; Jenny Kading, 100-meter free, and Amy Savage, 200-meter back.

Lund Staves Off Challenge

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP) — Tiny Lund, fighting off Jim Paschal's Javelin for 100 miles, won the Flemington 200 NASCAR Grand American Challenge Series race at the Flemington Fairgrounds Tuesday night.

The race was marred by one accident when Ken Rush of High Point, N.C., and Elan Starr Sr. of Nashville, Tenn., collided on the backstretch of the one-half mile dirt track.

Starr suffered a leg injury and Rush, the defending Grand American champion, received internal injuries.

Lund, of Cross, S.C., in a Camaro, battled Paschal of Hilton, Ga., for the last 20 laps, and won his 15th race of the season by four car lengths.

Finishing third was Doug Aldridge of Montree, N.C. in a Camaro. The rookie driver was one-lap behind.

Carol Flenniken Wins Match

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Carol Sorenson Flenniken, former champion of the Women's Western amateur golf tournament, survived Tuesday's match play round with a 2 and 1 decision over Miss Mary Shea of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Flenniken, formerly of Janesville, Wis., was paired in today's play against Mrs. Robert Sharpener of Chicago and Fontana, Wis.

Palmer, Jack Favored in National Four-Ball Meet

By BOB GREEN

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The imposing duo of Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus ranked as the favorites in a sparkling field assembled for the $200,000 National Four-Ball Golf Championship. The event, the only one of its kind on the pro tour, hasn't been played for two years, when teams are Ken Still and Gene George Archer and Bobby Ni-Littler, winner of the team-play chols captured the title in Okla-homa City.

They're also likely to be among the favorites for the Masters tournament that carries the official title National Four-Ball Championship Tournament with an injured shoulder for two weeks but Casper said he has been assured his partner will be available.

The format calls for 60 teams of two players each, competing in medal play, with the team "I can't handle Palmer and son. Ray Floyd-Bob Rosburg scoring only on the better ball. Nicklaus alone. One at a time, and Miller Barber-Dort January.

cluding 15 major titles. The field is possibly the strongest of the year. About the only major names missing are U.S. Open champion Tony Jackal. They are one of four brother combinations in the tournament. The others are Dick and John Lotz, Tom and Mickey Shaw and South Africans Harold and Allart Henning. And there's one uncle-nephew team, Charles ad Curtis Sifford.

Richardson had ordered the first baseman-outfielder to see the team physician. When the doctor ordered Pepitone into the hospital for treatment, he re- belled and asked for the waiver. "I said I would report for whatever treatment they wanted me to take but I wasn't about to be put in bed for a sore arm," he said.

When sidelined July 9 by a pitch from Pete Mikkelsen of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Pepi- tone had a .251 batting average for 279 times up, including 14 home runs and 35 runs batted in.

tos refuse to believe he has a sore arm.

"When people think you're lying to them, it makes a bad situation," Pepitone said.

"I just want to get away from here," he said. "It's not the guys on the team. I think they're a good bunch. But when you're hurt and practically told to your face you're lying, it's hard to want to stay."

Disgruntled Pepitone Wants To be Placed on Waivers

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Pepi- tone left his Houston uniform- mer's home course. It's a 7,045- yard, par-71 layout that has day night as the Astros played the Pittsburgh Pirates, saying since it served as host to the he was going on the voluntary 1965 PGA National Champion- retired list.

Pepitone, who was rumored to be heading for New York, has been feuding with general manager Spec Richardson and has asked to be put on waivers. Richardson's only comment at game time was "I hope he is in St. Louis with the team Wednesday night."

Manager Harry Walker said prior to the game he did not know Pepitone's whereabouts, noting that the former New York Yankees player had been at early workouts.

Pepitone's trouble with the Houston management apparent- ly stems from an elbow injury suffered last week when he was hit by a pitched ball.

He wants to move to another club, he said, because the As-

2. Tread Life Guarantee Against Defects

We guarantee the Grantmaster tires against all defects of material and workmanship, for the life of the tread.

Basis of Adjustment: Should your Grantmaster tire require adjustment under Section 1 or 2 of the Guarantee, please return it to Grants and we will replace it by giving you a proportionate allowance for the unused tread. Based on the current selling price, including Federal Excise Tax.

3. Guaranteed Against Tread Wear

The original tread is warranted and to wear out for the number of months designated if tread wears out during this period, the tire should be returned to Grants and we will re- place it, charging the current regular selling price plus Federal Excise Tax less the follow- ing percentage allowance toward the purchase of a new tire.

Tire Guarantee Months Allowance

18-24 Months 25%

24-30 Months 33%

This guarantee covers tires in passenger car service only. Passenger car tires used in com- mercial service reduce the guarantee period by 50%.

was declared a California parole violator.

For 45 minutes, Newton, a solid 5 foot 10 inches tall in his baggy prison blues, answered questions about the Panthers' goal of bringing about what he calls "a democratic society free of racism."

He explained that his projected revolution would create a society in which the people control the institutions, the government is a cooperative, and large privately owned corporations become public entities.

"Eventually these companies will be absolutely socialized and turned over as public enterprises," Newton said. "There will be no profit to any particular group and the people themselves will reap the benefit."

While he is proud of the Black Panther breakfast programs and clinics in some of the nation's big cities, Newton characterizes himself as a revolutionizer, not a reformer, explaining: "A revolutionary wants complete change, because he's dissatisfied with a set of existing conditions. He feels they're only changed through complete revolution."

"For blacks and other minorities here a Socialist government is the only salvation because we've never gained anything from capitalism," he said.

Black Capitalism
"Nixon and his lackeys are attempting to lead blacks up a creek with the concept of black capitalism," Newton said.

"Now they're trying to dupe us into investing in a country that's already overexpanded with an inflated economy."

Eventually, internal discontent coupled with an increasing number of war fronts will weaken the United States enough for a successful revolution, he said.

"It will be a world revolution," the Panther leader declared.

"The police regime, the Pentagon, is too powerful for it to be defeated on a national level."

"All indications are that it will be a violent conflict judging from the activities of this fascist government," he added.

The Cambodian venture was a lesson in "U.S. imperialism" to a broad cross-section of the public, Newton said.

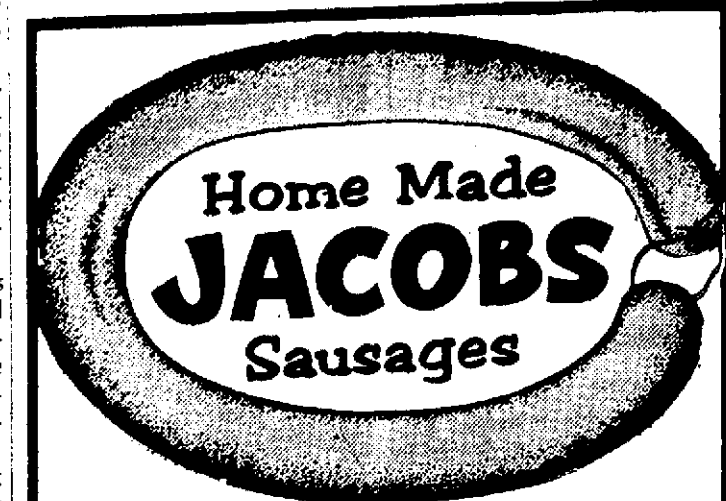

Deeply Involved
"After the murders at Kent State and Jackson State, people got involved," he said. "Before becoming a revolutionary, one has to get deeply involved."

Newton expressed doubt that white working class Americans would support his revolution.

"Many of the so-called leftist Marxist groups feel the proletariat still carries the revolutionary potential," he said. "We doubt this because labor has a place very close to capital."

"The white radicals have a place in the revolutionary struggle, but they have factional problems in their own circles. I wish they'd stop bickering and

Newton Items On Calendar

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two items involving Black Panther Minister of Defense Huey P. Newton were on the calendar of the California Supreme Court today, but as usual in such cases there was no indication when the court might act.

First was his attorney's petition that Newton be released on bail pending retrial. His conviction for the voluntary manslaughter of an Oakland policeman in October 1967 was overturned last May 27 by the state Court of Appeal and a retrial ordered on ground his trial judge omitted certain instructions to the jury.

The second item before the court was the appeal by California Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch against the appellate court's overturning of Newton's conviction.

Newton has been in prison for 2½ years on a 2-to-15-year sentence.

Federal Trustees Being Named to Run Penn Central During Reorganization

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge names today a trustee or trustees to run the Penn Central, America's biggest railroad, while it undergoes reorganization under the federal bankruptcy act.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge John P. Fullam said he had given careful consideration to more than 75 persons suggested for appointment.

Jervis Langdon Jr., 63, chairman and president of the Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, conferred with Fullam at length on Tuesday. Langdon, who has years of service in railroads, was president of the Baltimore & Ohio before joining the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific in 1964.

Ice Okay
The judge's selection or selections—at least one trustee, but expected to be three—must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The candidates included men prominent in banking, business, law and railroading, plus former governors and U.S. senators and representatives.

A trustee is expected to receive an annual fee of around $75,000.

Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, had urged appointment of at least one trustee who would give priority concern to the public interest, protecting shippers and passengers.

The reorganization, involving passenger and freight operations on Penn Central's 42,731 miles of track in 14 states and two Canadian provinces, could last a decade or longer.

Up to now, under the petition to reorganize filed June 21, the Penn Central had been rolling along with the old management, headed by Paul C. Gorman, at the throttle.

On Tuesday there was fresh evidence of financial distress, when the Interstate Commerce Commission disclosed the line had sought permission to drop immediately 24 of 34 passenger trains operating west of Albany, N.Y., and Harrisburg, Pa.

Penn Central officials said they would not be able to meet current bills if required to keep all of the western passenger trains in operation. Penn Central's payroll is $20 million weekly.

In March, the railroad had petitioned the ICC to drop all 34 trains, but was required to keep them running while the ICC investigated.

Among the trains the Penn Central wants to drop are the Penn Limited from New York to Chicago, the Manhattan Limited from Chicago to New York, and the Duquesne from Pittsburgh to New York.

Gorman, whose salary is $250,000 a year, will still run the Penn Central Co., of which the Penn Central Transportation Co. is the railroad subsidiary.

The transportation giant was created 29 months ago by joining the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads in the largest rail merger in history.

Bombers Attack Enemy Territory

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers attacked anti-aircraft guns 65 miles inside North Vietnam Tuesday after the North Vietnamese fired on an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet, the U.S. Command announced today.

It was the first American attack of North Vietnam reported in nearly a month.

A spokesman said neither the Air Force RP4 reconnaissance Phantom nor its two escorting Phantoms which made the attack were hit. Damage to the North Vietnamese gun positions was not known, the spokesman added.

Deeply Involved

"After the murders at Kent State and Jackson State, people got involved," he said. "Before becoming a revolutionary, one has to get deeply involved."

Newton expressed doubt that white working class Americans would support his revolution.

"Many of the so-called leftist Marxist groups feel the proletariat still carries the revolutionary potential," he said. "We doubt this because labor has a place very close to capital."

"The white radicals have a place in the revolutionary struggle, but they have factional problems in their own circles. I wish they'd stop bickering and

Research Challenged Young Scientists Want Relevancy

LONDON (AP) — Eighty young scientists from Europe, America and Asia are demanding an end to "irrelevant" research and more emphasis on solving such problems as famine, pollution and the population explosion.

The group, in London for an international science seminar, said Tuesday that 90 per cent of the world's scientists are "wasting their time" on experiments that are unimportant and sometimes even harmful to humanity.

The scientists, most of them under 30, are members of the International Students Movement for the United Nations and another group called LASITOC—the Look At Search In Try Out Committee, an international scientific group active in Britain and Sweden.

Growing Misgivings
Peter Harper, LASITOC's director in Britain, told a discussion session at the Imperial College of Science that he and several other delegates had dropped out of conventional and scientific research because of "growing misgivings about the role of science in altering our environment" and because he believed some current scientific methods are stockpiling trouble for the future.

"We are concerned by the way things are going in the scientific world," he said. Harper told the seminar earlier he quit brain biochemistry research at Sussex University because he feared his experiments on the transfer of memory cells between rats might be tried on humans later.

He and his associates said the space race also is irrelevant and possibly harmful to mankind.

They suggested:

—More intensive research to spot possibly harmful long-term side effects from such things as drugs and pesticides.

—National research organizations that would guarantee the independence of science from industry.

—More concentration on world hunger and overpopulation.

—Deeper consciousness among scientists of the moral aspects of their work.

Richard Noonan of Bryan, Ohio, Columbia University graduate now doing research in Sweden, urged the creation of national "peoples' science councils" financed with public money but "free of government or business control." He said these councils would make feasibility studies of all aspects of a research project by drawing on experts from every field involved.

Barbecue-Style Potatoes

Red Bean-Red Wine Skillet

the Great Outdoors

Lillian Mackesy

There's no reason why these recipes can't be great successes in backyard or patio dining. However, this is the season for taking to Wisconsin's great outdoors. The weather's just right for family trips, the weekends are long and the resorts, lakes, streams, parks, historical sites and even roadside waysides are beckoning with an allure hard to resist.

A wandering ride toward the Kettle Moraine country, or Door County encircling the peninsula north of Green Bay, a jaunt to Waupaca's Cham O' Lakes with a stopover visit at historic Hutchinson House in South Park at Waupaca, a ride southward to Fond du Lac's impressive and interesting Galloway Museum and Village on Pioneer Road, maybe a trip to Winneconne's interesting museum and a look at the lake, or a trip to the Doty Cabin in Neenah's Doty Park — all of these are short jaunts right on the Fox Cities' doorstep.

But it doesn't matter whether it's north where the tall trees make cool and beautiful scenery, south through rolling or flat farmland, depending on direction, east to the lake ports and beaches or west to the Mississippi and its intriguing river road. It all will be fun and especially enjoyable if the food to be eaten en route or at campsite is excellent. And so it will be if these recipes are used.

There's a new recipe for Barbecue-Style New Potatoes to serve with charcoal broiled steaks or poultry. There's a gourmet campfire recipe from expert outdoorsman and cookbook author James Beard called Red Bean-Red Wine Skillet. Beard suggests this hearty dish be served with a crisp salad or raw vegetable assortment, crusty bread and a juicy melon for dessert.

Burgers on buns include both beef and salmon burgers for a delicious grilled menu and the last recipe is described for trout, freshly caught, but the sauce is good for any fish, fresh or frozen. The Barbecued Trout recipe comes from an outdoor cooking enthusiast, avid fisherman Phil Roedel, director of the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries. Says he, "Trout are a natural for barbecuing over the coals."

You better believe it.

BARBECUE-STYLE NEW POTATOES

2 pounds new potatoes
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/2 green pepper, diced
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
1 1/2 cups tomato juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

3 drops Tabasco sauce
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Peel and dice potatoes into half-inch cubes. Combine onion, green pepper, parsley and cheese. Place alternate layers of diced potatoes and cheese mixture in six buttered individual casseroles. Combine tomato juice with remaining ingredients. Pour approximately a fourth-cup tomato mixture in each casserole. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Uncover and bake an additional 15 to 20 minutes, or until potatoes are tender.

Summer Flu Often Food Poisoning

Carelessness about handling delicatessen and homemade picnic foods can be a major cause of "summer flu."

Both hot and cold delicatessen foods are prepared and kept under strict control and held at specific temperatures to avoid bacterial growth of the sort that causes food poisoning.

Usually, if a person becomes ill after eating picnic fare or delicatessen foods, it is his own fault or that of the homemaker.

Don't Leave In Car

Bacteria multiply rapidly in warm weather, so don't leave these foods in cars for any length of time. Make a quick trip home and serve foods right away. Eat cold foods immediately or store them promptly in a refrigerator.

The same rules for food safety in the summer apply to home prepared foods. If foods have been sitting out in a warm kitchen or on a picnic table for an hour or more be very wary of eating it the next day.

Sandwich Foods

Serving foods such as potato salad or meat dishes in small portions and keeping the main portion refrigerated for another meal is the best method to avoid stomach upsets in the family.

Stomach aches, nausea, diarrhea or a sluggish feeling all can be a result of food poisoning. If an upset does occur in the family, make a 24-hour recall of what foods were eaten. It may be due to a food that was warmed and cooled too often, it could be a sack-lunch sandwich brought back home and put in the refrigerator.

Keep sack lunches cold in the summer with canned ice or use frozen sandwiches that will just be thawed by lunch time.

Using foods least likely to develop poisoning bacteria also is a good idea. Canned meat, hard-cooked eggs, cheese and peanut butter are safe summer foods. Avoid sandwiches with minced, salad fillings; these invite bacterial growth.

Hints for Smooth Fondue

The art of producing perfectly smooth and evenly blended cheese fondue is mostly a matter of practice and patience. Here are some suggestions to help the fondue novice become an expert.

Keep fondue from separating or becoming stringy by cooking with low heat also, avoid letting the wine boil.

The most popular fondue cheeses are natural Swiss and Gruyere. Process Swiss cheese makes an excellent substitute. However, the flavor will be milder.

Shred cheese and add it to the wine in small portions, stirring with a wooden spoon until each portion melts. This procedure takes patience as all the cheese must melt before adding more. Stir the mixture constantly while adding cheese.

Use a dry, white wine if only sweet wine is available.

add a little lemon juice with the wine. Or, use apple cider in place of wine.

If fondue separates or becomes stringy, reheat the mixture and stir in a little warm wine that has been combined with a small amount of cornstarch. Stir the mixture with a wire whisk until smooth. If fondue is too thick, thin it with pre-heated (never cold) wine.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

The Italian wine everyone knows best is Chianti. Sometimes it's the only one we know at all.

Perhaps Chianti makes you think of an attractive straw-covered flask that you can turn into a lamp or candlestick. Maybe you associate it with Florence, the marvelous museum-like city of Tuscany, where Chianti is made.

But did you know that the best Chianti doesn't come in a colorful fiasco at all? It comes in a regular wine bottle because it needs to age and can live for many years lying quietly on its side, not rolling around in the straw.

It may also surprise you to know there's considerable difference in vintages. I proved this on a recent visit to the Chianti country, where I was able to taste the 1967, 1965, 1964, 1961 and 1955 wines of one high-quality producer side by side.

Home of Mona Lisa

The winery is called Vignamaggio, and it occupies a fine country villa where the Mona Lisa is said to have lived. The vintage I preferred was 1961, a great sturdy wine. The proprietor of Vignamaggio inclined toward his 1964, which was still somewhat hard but promising a fine future. The 1955 had reached its peak and had begun to decline.

However, other producers obtain other results. For instance, the 1955 Antinori Riserva is still at its best. If you doubt that good Chianti has a long life, look at the list of a leading Roman wine shop where vintages of Brolio Riserva back to 1920 sell up to $40. Last April a unique bottle of 1889 Meini brought $500 at a Milan auction.

Other leading Chianti names include Ruffino Riserva Ducale, Frescobaldi Nipozzano, Nozzole Riserva, Marchetti and Ancillotti. Much of the best Chianti is from the "classico" region but not all.

Firm, Assertive

Well-aged Chianti is well-balanced, firm, and assertive — an excellent wine to accompany hearty dishes of Italian pasta, meat and cheese. Here is a good one from a handsome, authoritative Italian cookbook by an American, Jack Denton Scott's "The Complete Book of Pasta." (William Morrow, 1968, $15).

Scott knows Italy well, and like many a good Italian cook he enjoys improvising. Thus some 8 or 10 dishes named "Giovannino," which is to say alla Jack Denton Scott.

The following recipe is something of an all-Italian favorite which you can cook with Chianti and serve with glasses of the same.

RIGATONI WITH POT ROAST

2 tablespoons olive oil
2 garlic cloves, mashed
1 teaspoon salt
Liberal amount of freshly ground black pepper
3 pounds beef chuck roast
4 cups Italian plum tomatoes
1 bay leaf
Pinch of dried rosemary
1 cup red wine
6 mushrooms, sliced
1 pound rigatoni (large grooved pasta tubes)

Saute garlic in oil until brown, then discard.

Sprinkle salt and pepper on meat, and sear on all sides over high flame. Add tomatoes, bay leaf, rosemary and wine, cover and simmer for 2 hours or until fork-tender, stirring and basting often.

Remove meat and slice. Add mushrooms to pot and cook 10 minutes.

Cook rigatoni, drain, and toss with part of the meat sauce. Serve with more sauce and sliced meat, or serve alone as a first course, with meat and vegetables to follow. Recipe serves six.

Learn First Aid Treatments To Use During 'Burn Season'

The "burn season" is in full swing again — and that doesn't mean just sunburn either.

Now that summer's here, husbands, wives and children once again become targets of painful burns, large and small — and in 40 per cent of all burn accidents, the victims are children.

Charcoal grilling, grass fires, camp fires, fireworks (usually illegal) and playing with matches are five of the most common causes of painful summertime burns.

Whether the patient is a youngster howling in pain, or the span of the house dancing about with a blistered finger from the charcoal grill, it's important for the homemaker to know the rudiments of modern burn treatment. An estimated 300,000 burn accidents not serious enough to require hospitalization occur annually. In addition, there are some 70,000 serious burn cases a year, 12,000 of them fatal.

The most serious result of burns of any degree is the damage to the body's protective covering — the skin. Primary treatment objectives are to prevent further skin damage, protect against infection and lessen shock.

Obviously, the severity of the burn governs the treatment. First degree burns are characterized by reddening, second degree by blistering and third degree by charring — presenting a serious medical emergency.

First Aid Care

Dr. Harry H. Abrahams, chief of surgery at Syosset Hospital, Syosset, N.Y., offers the following guidelines for first aid burn care:

— All burns should be treated immediately. A first rule of burn treatment is cleanliness to avoid the infection that causes permanent damage.

— Holding the burn under a faucet or plunging it into clean, cool water is a safe and simple first step to stop pain caused by exposure to air.

— A mild burn ointment or vaseline will also seal the burn against air. These substances should be applied with sterile gauze or cotton after the burn area has been cleaned. Never use butter or shortening. They may well carry harmful bacteria.

— Try to keep the skin on the burn intact. Never break a blister. Cover the burn with an adhesive bandage to protect the skin from further damage. Avoid getting any small pieces of material, like cotton fuzz, into the wound as they are very difficult to remove.

— There is a new product on the market that helps in the treatment of small minor burns, the doctor says. It is a small moist pad containing a solution that relieves pain, kills germs and cleans the burn area. Fabric of the pad will not stick to the skin.

Major Burns

Major burns demand expert medical attention. Generally, the larger the area of the burn, the more serious it is. A first-degree burn — reddening without blisters — is considered major if it covers a whole arm or larger area. A blister the size of a dime is not serious, but any larger blistering should be taken to a doctor. Any burn that chars or blackens the skin is a very serious injury.

Prompt immersion of the whole area of a major burn in clean, lukewarm water will ease pain, help prevent airborne infection and minimize shock while medical help is being summoned. Where burns have been caused by chemicals that are still wet, a gentle shower can help cut down damage.

With major burns, prevention of "burn shock" becomes an important first aid objective. In burn shock, blood liquids escape at the site of the injury and may deprive the brain, heart and other organs of an adequate blood supply.

Persons with as much as 25 per cent or more of their body surface burned may die from these effects alone. If conscious, the victim of such a major burn should drink large amounts of liquid — any non-alcoholic beverage.

Do not try to remove clothing from a seriously burned person. You may pull off skin that could otherwise be saved or cause permanent scarring. You can put such a victim in a bathtub full of clean lukewarm water, clothes and all if possible, or wrap him in a clean sheet and cover with a blanket until help arrives. Never put anything — ointment, powder or spray — on a major burn. Wait for the doctor.

Of course prevention still remains the best cure for a burn. Attention and care should be watchwords for all family activities this summer.

'Peanut Butter Lady' Attacks Franks

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE
WASHINGTON — The "Peanut Butter Lady" — The "Peanut Butter Lady" is cooking up a storm again. But this time her target is the labeling of "all-meat" and "all-beef" frankfurters.

The "Peanut Butter Lady" is Ruth Desmond, a Virginia grandmother who led the battle against "glop" in peanut butter and steady decrease in the proportion of nuts in the popular food product.

After ten years of hearings and studies, there is still no final standard for the proportion of peanuts in peanut butter sold to the public. The Food and Drug Administration finally set a level of 90 per cent peanuts, but manufacturers are now fighting that in the courts.

Proportions Withheld
Meanwhile, most of them are putting out products that meet that standard or come close to it. When Mrs. Desmond began her fight to keep peanuts predominant in peanut butter, the proportion of them in one brand had fallen below 80 per cent, with the rest mostly fat.

Yet consumers had no way to tell from the label what proportions were in any brand. If the government's proposed standard holds up in court, all manufacturers would have to conform to it but would not have to disclose it.

Standard of ingredients for hot dogs already exist. But Mrs. Desmond feels that they are too weak. And she says that labeling of "all-meat" and "all-beef" products is "false and misleading" because of non-meat ingredients allowed under present standards.

A Blended Product
So she has just filed suit against the U.S. Department of Agriculture and its top officials in an effort to make them discontinue such wording. She has filed the suit in the name of the Federation of Homemakers, a small but vocal organization which she heads.

The case was filed in U.S.

District Court here by Edward Berlin, the lawyer who represented several consumer groups in their successful fight last year to get the Agriculture Department to limit the fat in hot dogs to 30 per cent instead of 33 per cent as proposed by the department.

Mrs. Desmond says a frankfurter that meets standards allowing 30 per cent fat, 10 per cent added water, 2 per cent corn syrup solids, plus a variety of spices and curing additives is neither "all-meat," "all-beef" nor "all-pork."

She says a frankfurter cannot by any of these items because by definition it is an emulsified and blended product. She deplores the fact that a nutritional addition such as non-fat dry milk is not permitted in such products.

She feels that many consumers are misled into purchasing "all-meat" and "all-beef" items in the mistaken belief that they are exactly as labeled. If they are not 100 per cent meat or beef, she asks, how can they be truthfully labeled as "all-meat" or "all-beef?"

Claim Disputed
The Agriculture Department maintains that there is no deception in the labeling and there are only enough non-meat ingredients to season and prepare the products for public sale.

Chalice Circle Takes Time Out to Relax at Patio Party

A Friendly welcome awaited Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Burstein, when they were greeted on the patio by their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Verner Haag at Monday's Chalice Circle party.

Deep in conversation, Mrs. Ronald Veara makes a point while enjoying refreshments outdoors on the Haag patio.

The sun shone bright in a preview of Indian summer Monday, when members of the Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters gathered with their husbands for a patio party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Haag.

It was a time to relax, a time to reminisce, a time to take stock for circle members deeply involved in the work of their Put 'N' Take resale shop. Having just marked the third anniversary of their successful venture, the women took this opportunity to reward themselves for a job well done, one that has provided funds for a variety of community services and hours of satisfaction serving the consumer.

A Tasty Array of snacks and appetizers draws Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stephenson to the buffet table beneath the trees at the Haag home.

Femininity a Drawback for First Black Congresswoman

NEW YORK — The country's first Negro congresswoman asserted today that in politics "being black is much less of a drawback than being female."

Rep. Shirley Chisholm writing as guest columnist in the current issue of McCall's, explained that during her political career, she has "faced undisguised hostility because of my sex."

"Being the first black woman elected to Congress has made me some kind of phenomenon," The New York Democrat said. "There are nine other blacks in Congress; there are ten other women. I was the first to overcome both handicaps at once. Of the two handicaps, being black is much less of a drawback than being female."

Mrs. Chisholm continued: "that there is prejudice against women is an idea that still strikes nearly all men — and, I am afraid, most women — as bizarre."

"Part of the problem is that women in America are much more brainwashed and content with their roles as second-class citizens than blacks ever were," she wrote.

"When a bright young woman graduate starts looking for a job, why is the first question always: 'Can you type?' A history of prejudice lies behind that question. Why are women thought of as secretaries, not administrators? Librarians and teachers, but not doctors and lawyers? Because they are thought of as different and inferior. The happy homemaker and the contented dandy are both stereotypes produced by prejudice.

"Women have not even reached the level of tokenism that blacks are reaching," she said. "No women sit on the Supreme Court. Only two have held Cabinet rank, and none at present. Only two women hold ambassadorial rank... if that is not prejudice, what would you call it?"

"The women of a nation mold its morals, its religion, and its politics by the lives they live. At present, our country needs women's idealism and determination, perhaps more in politics than anywhere else," Mrs. Chisholm wrote.

Wedding Promises Exchanged

SEYMOUR — Miss Cynthia Helms became the bride of Daniel Tumpach in a 3 p.m. ceremony July 4 at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Helms, route 1, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tumpach, Green Bay.

Miss Pamela Tumpach, sister of the bridegroom, attended as maid of honor. Miss Cheryl Muenster and Miss Janet Ehler were bridesmaids.

Joseph Tumpach Jr. was best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Steven Helms and Gary Bero. Wayne Helms and Ralph Germain seated guests, whom the couple later greeted at the Seymour Hotel.

The new Mrs. Daniel Tumpach was graduated with a B.F.A. degree from the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Mr. Tumpach is serving with the Army overseas.

Diehm-Kiecker
STEPHENSON, MICHIGAN — Miss Susan Diehm became the bride of the Rev. James Kiecker in a June 28 ceremony at St. Stephen Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Diehm, Stephenson, Mich. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. George Kiecker, 419 E. Pacific St., Appleton.

Mrs. Robert Oliver, sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor. Miss Denise Diehm and Miss Lisa Diehm were junior bridesmaids.

David Kiecker served his brother as best man. Darwin Diehm and Donovan Diehm shared ushering duties.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University. Her husband is a graduate of Northwestern College, Watertown, Wis., and of Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary, Mequon, Wis.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

does not bid one spade over your one-heart response, it is seldom necessary to mention spades at all.

There is nothing really unusual about the bidding, yet many players would rebid two spades instead of two no-trump at their second opportunity.

As a general rule, when holding two four-card suits and hearing partner bid both of the other suits, it is better to rebid no-trump at your next opportunity than to show your second suit.

The main reason is to give partner a picture of a balanced hand. By bidding two suits, the inference is that the first suit is five or six cards long and that there is some reason for not bidding no-trump, perhaps a singleton or a void. In fact, the rebid of two no-trump, which shows 10-12 points, gives more information as to strength and distribution than a rebid of two spades.

South ducked West's unfriendly diamond lead twice and won the third round of the suit. Without further ado, South finessed the club into East, who won and returned a small spade.

South thought he had a problem, so he consulted the ceiling. This was no help so he simply played the jack of spades. West won the queen and scored his two diamonds before leading over to his partner's ace of spades. When the carnage was over, South found himself three tricks short on an ice-cold hand!

Consider South's dilemma when East leads a small spade through his king-jack. South knows that West has the setting tricks in diamonds. Therefore, if West also has the ace of spades, there is no way on earth the hand can be made. Accordingly, South must assume the ace of spades is with East and go up with the king.

Principle of Play: Whenever either defender leads through a K-J combination and the leader's partner has the setting tricks, declarer should always play the king (provided declarer can count enough tricks for his contract). If the player with the setting tricks has the ace (behind the K-J combination), the hand can never be made. If he has the queen and not the ace, he can beat the contract only if declarer plays the jack.

Stated simply, the play of the jack gives the dangerous defender two chances to gain entry (ace or queen); the play of the king gives him only one chance (the ace).

World's largest crawler tractor now in production... sets new performance standards

Allis-Chalmers makes it big!

All set for delivery, the first HD-41 crawler tractor rolled off the production line this month at Allis-Chalmers Springfield, Illinois plant. This 60-ton, 525 h.p. giant meets a growing need for more power in mining, land reclamation, construction and highway projects throughout the world. Years ahead of its time, it pioneers a new concept of tractor size, power and working ability. Perfected over seven years, the HD-41 has been thoroughly field tested and is a proven new machine. It has had more than 24,000 gruelling hours on actual mining and construction jobsites.

...the "Better Business Machine"

This important earth-moving innovation is already receiving enthusiastic customer response. Orders from major corporations were placed even before production began. Interest centers particularly around its high productivity in dozing, push loading and rock ripping. And this "better business machine" is expected to play a significant part in the future Federal Interstate Highway System programs.

Long shanks of the 41 R ripper cut even a big man down to size—comparatively. They do a real job on tough rock when dragged through by the new Allis-Chalmers HD-41 tractor.

Electrical and processing equipment new orders up 28%

Incoming order volume at Allis-Chalmers is higher than for the past several years. In electrical and processing equipment, new orders received during the first six months of 1970 are 28% ahead of the same period last year—with the backlog in these products 20% higher than in the same period of 1969. The effect of some of this new business will be felt in 1970, with the major impact coming in 1971.

The remainder of our new orders involve multi-million dollar contracts that will be completed over the next several years. Backlogs in this phase of our business are expected to increase as the impact of Allis-Chalmers recent re-entry into the gas and steam turbine business materializes.

Eight massive hydraulic turbines, for example, were ordered during the second quarter. Our Motor and Generator Division is building 149 electric motors—ranging up to 6,000 h.p.—for three electric utilities. Large project orders in the Cement and Mining Division included new iron pelletizing lines for a major steel company. Four 80,000 horsepower pumps are under construction for the large California water systems now underway.

1970 earnings holding up

Despite the nation's declining business conditions during the first six months of 1970, Allis-Chalmers has announced that net earnings were up slightly—$12.2 million compared with $12.0 million for the same 1969 period.

For the second quarter of 1970, earnings were $6.8 million versus $6.9 million in 1969. First quarter earnings for 1970 were $5.4 million.

The average number of common and common equivalent shares outstanding during the first six months of 1970 was 610,000 higher than in the same period of 1969, having the effect of lowering earnings approximately 5¢ per share in 1970. This results in earnings per common and common equivalent share of $9.98 for 1970 and $1.01 for 1969.

Ann Prefers Imagination

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was fascinated by the letter from the former teacher who expressed concern over the daily slaughter of the English language. Her kind turns kids off and makes them hate English. I'm glad she's not teaching anymore.

Of course grammar is important, but it's not the be-all and end-all. Any exciting, original composition with grammatical errors will get a better grade from me than a dull, unimaginative, mechanically perfect composition. Teachers who are hipped on grammar stifle creative excitement. Give me a bright, imaginative student and I can teach him grammar. Spare me the student who can turn out an errorless essay but doesn't have an original idea in his head. I can teach him nothing — Detroit Teacher

Dear Teacher: As one who has split countless infinitives and dangled many a participle, I applaud your point of view. A person who has nothing to say, and conveys it in flawless English, still says nothing

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the former English teacher who offered a free lesson on the correct usage of such words as "bad" and "badly." She asked, "Where are today's English teachers? Don't they teach grammar anymore?"

As an English teacher who is still teaching grammar I would like to inform the writer that there is no such word as "anymore" in Webster's dictionary. She should have asked, "Do they have no longer teach grammar?" — R.L. of Hollywood

Dear R.L.: Please look on page 97 of Webster's Third New International Dictionary. You will find the word "anymore." (Do they no longer check current references to determine what words are part of the language?)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our family doctor, who has a lovely wife and four children, is having an affair with a woman who pretends to be a patient although she is healthy as a horse. It hurts me to see this wonderful man ruin his reputation and destroy his family with such foolishness. A few weeks ago I became so upset I called his receptionist and asked her to inform his wife. Apparently the girl

I wrote a letter to the American Medical Association but to date have received no answer. This morning I telephoned the County Medical Society and spoke with a very rude woman who said she was "too busy" to bother with such things. "Too busy" — can you imagine! A doctor's reputation and family is at stake and she is too busy to bother

Please think of something else I can do. I am sick over this — SOS

Dear S.O.S.: Get a part time job and drain off some of that excess energy. If the doctor is behaving like a jackass, he'll probably pay for his foolishness, but it is none of your business. The AMA and the County Medical Society do not become involved in such matters.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Consult Labels Before Mixing, Using Pesticides

Labels are the language of the merchandise you buy. A person's success in using pesticide products depends on how well he reads, understands and uses label information, according to Margaret Nelson, consumer protection specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Directions tell the user what and how to mix the product, the time to use it and how to apply it, she said. The label includes precautions necessary for the safety of people, pets, and wildlife. Directions should be read each time the product is used, and measurements should be taken accurately.

Highly toxic products must carry the words, "danger" and "poison" and skull and crossbones in red on the front label, Miss Nelson noted. Less toxic products carry the words "warning" or "caution" and may also include the warning "keep out of reach of children".

All toxic products must carry an antidote statement on the label, she said. This tells the user what to do in case the pesticide is swallowed or inhaled.

Both active and inert ingredients must be listed. Active ingredients are listed first, by percentages or in descending order by weight, according to Miss Nelson.

Labels will also identify the product according to brand, manufacturer, the net contents and a USDA registration number, she said. When pesticides are sold in interstate commerce, they are registered with the USDA and carry that number on the label. The number does NOT mean the USDA recommends the product; it merely identifies the product and manufacturer, Miss Nelson noted.

Spice is Nice With Fresh Blueberries

Sugar and spice and everything nice goes with blueberries. Most people can hardly think of blueberries without getting a nice warm feeling inside.

Some say that that's because we associate blueberries with the happy times of childhood. If we went berry picking it was always when "school was out" and the sun was high in the sky and days were joyous and carefree.

Even if we didn't berry-pick when we were kids, we enjoyed blueberries in pancakes and muffins and pies and cakes during those same warm weather days.

The day you want a delightful blueberry treat with practically no effort, plan on Blueberry Spice Shortcake for dessert. Start with a mix and end up with a most tempting delicious dessert, a nice variation on the usual shortcake theme.

BLUEBERRY SPICE SHORTCAKES

1 cup blueberries
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup water

1 pkg. yellow cake mix
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
2 eggs
1 cup water
2 cups blueberries

2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 pkgs. vanilla pudding and pie filling
1 cup blueberries
1 cup heavy cream, whipped and sweetened

FOR TOPPING, first part of recipe, combine blueberries, sugar and water in saucepan and bring to a boil. Simmer 5 minutes. Cool.

In second part, combine cake mix, spice, eggs and water. Beat until smooth and spread batter evenly in a well-greased and floured 9 x 13 x 2 inch baking pan. Sprinkle with blueberries and orange rind. Bake as directed on package. Remove from pan and cool.

For Filling: Prepare pudding as directed on package. Cool. Fold in cup blueberries. Cut cake into 12 pieces. Cut each piece into two layers. Spoon pudding between layers, top with whipped cream and blueberry topping.

Wash Vacuum Brush

The bristles of a vacuum cleaner need to be cleaned occasionally. Use fingers and a coarse comb to work suds into bristles and draw out accumulated dirt and grime. Rinse thoroughly and allow to dry.

Attorneys Give Arguments in Labor Dispute

Fact Finder Weighs Teamster, City Sides On Crossing Guards

Legal counsels for Teamsters Local 563 and the City of Appleton presented arguments Tuesday afternoon to a fact finder on the school crossing guard labor dispute.

John S. Williamson, Milwaukee attorney for 563, said the union is contending that agreement had been reached with the city several months ago following talks with then-Ald. John Ayers, chairman of the City Council Public Safety Committee.

City Atty. David Geenen said the city contends Ayers had no authority to make an agreement — only the City Council does — and the issue is economics. The union is seeking health insurance and guaranteed work week provisions for the 29-member unit.

Fact finder Abner Brody of the University of Wisconsin Law School faculty, said he would bring his recommendations back to the parties as soon as possible. Brody was named by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) after mediation failed and the union sought the fact-finding.

Stopped by Mayor Jeffrey Curtin, 563 business representative testified that the agreement he had worked out with Ayers "never reached the council chambers," and apparently had been stopped by "the mayor and others." He

Costs of Facility Revealed

Joint Safety Building Group Endorses City Leasing Plan

A proposal for the city to lease police administrative space from the county in a courts and safety building won endorsement Tuesday from the Joint City-County Safety Building Committee, amidst objections from property owners to giving up their homes for parking space.

Appleton Mayor George Buckley led the committee to adopt his motion that the joint committee recommend to its respective legislative bodies that the county build a safety building and lease space to Appleton for city law enforcement offices. A similar proposal from Buckley already has been referred to the City Council's Public Safety Committee for study.

The estimated maximum cost of the facility also was revealed. It has been set at $3 million, County Administrator Alvin Woehler said. A fixed 6 per cent interest rate was used, and a 15-year projected period of payment, for a total cost of $4.4 million.

A total of $750,000 was subtracted from the total cost as an amount that should be the county's sole responsibility for providing jail facilities. "The city is leasing administrative, not jail facilities," he said.

City Costs During the 15-year period, based on its using some 30,000 square feet, the city would pay an average of $3.22 per square foot, plus $1.33 in maintenance costs per year, for a total estimated cost to the city of $2,047,500, for amortizing construction cost and maintenance. After 15 years, there would only be maintenance costs.

Six property owners appeared before the joint committee to protest giving up their homes for the proposed parking area east of the courthouse.

Misses Dorothy and Rose Kolitsch, 410 S. Elm St., protested the move because they and their two elderly sisters had bought their home for their

Bicycling Boy, 7, Seriously Injured When Hit by Car

A 7-year-old route 1, Menasha, boy was in serious condition today after he was struck by a car and thrown about 25 feet while riding a bicycle near his home.

The boy is Thomas Kuntsman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kuntsman. The accident occurred at about 11 a.m. on Plank Road, about three miles east of U.S. 10.

He was taken to Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah, by Larry's ambulance.

The driver of the car stopped, but his identity was not available.

retirement, and since they had invested heavily in it, would like to live out their lives right where they were. "I don't feel, it's just to pick on just this one little group," Dorothy Kolitsch stated.

The sisters pointed out that properties to the north and west of the courthouse were rental properties, whose owners might not have a personal attachment to the buildings.

Mrs. Karl Langlois, 346 W. Prospect Ave., stated that the traffic on Sixth Street was so bad already that "people who live on the south side of Prospect can't get out of their driveways now." A parking facility would make traffic there just that much worse, she said.

Ald Robert Roemer (8th) proposed that the county proceed to study locating additional parking areas on the courthouse lawn, and to investigate the possibility of buying property north and west of the courthouse.

Supv. Jerome Hiler, Appleton, pointed out that the county already had made cost estimates on these properties. "We would have to pay a terrifically high price for inconvenient hodge-podge parking," County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt added.

Bus Decision Deadline Set

Transit company officials will decide by July 31 whether they are "not entirely" satisfied with the route and schedule River Bus Lines, Inc., will take changes offered by the city. The bus company didn't do for itself" by looking for efficiencies.

Starling said eliminating one north side route and cutting back from half-hour to hourly service during periods of low bus use would save 23½ hours of driver time a day while eliminating overlap of routes and producing nearly the same service now available. Mrs. Lundquist voiced fear of losing customers who must meet schedules on a half-hour basis, however.

Champion said the city representatives hope that by adopting operational changes the bus company can regain self-sufficiency and do without a subsidy. Despite occasional eruptions of discord, it was agreed that the company will suggest alternatives. In addition, the company accountant will meet with city representatives to discuss company requests for $3,000 subsidy payments for April and May as well as an expected June claim.

Sanitary Landfill Set

Kaukauna to Buy New Disposal Site

KAUKAUNA — The common council voted 8-2 Tuesday night to purchase a 70-acre wooded farm site in the Town of Buchanan and just east of the city for use as a sanitary landfill.

The cost of the property, for which an option was secured earlier this year, is $65,000. The dissenting votes came from Ald William Rogers (5th) and Ald Lloyd Kloehn (2nd), who preferred to see the farm retained in its natural state for conservation purposes.

Glen C. Bishop, chief engineer in charge of the solid waste disposal section of the State Department of Natural Resources, (DNR), indicated in a letter that the proposed site, with proper operation, could be an adequate sanitary landfill site and would be approved for such use.

Annexation Set Bishop said that official written approval for this use would be issued, along with a report on the physical aspects of the site. City Engineer Robert Napier had submitted a four-page report on the area when requesting site approval, and state officials said it was one of the finest reports ever received.

Wiretap Law Used 1st Time In Breaking Illegal Ring

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — At least 13 additional persons have been arrested in a continuation of the widespread drug crackdown centered in Winnebago County, as state and local lawmen used Wisconsin's new wiretap law for the first time in breaking the ring of alleged illicit drug salesmen.

While the attorney general's office would state only that county court pleadings in the case indicate that wire taps were used to obtain evidence, it is believed that the electronic eavesdropping took place in Winnebago County under a court order there.

(Winnebago County District Atty. Thomas Fink this morning said, "No one can ever comment on the existence of wire taps except in court or as a police function.")

(However, in the arrest complaints filed with the court, a statement signed by a special agent for the Wisconsin Department of Justice indicates he monitored at least 75 telephone conversations involving one or more of the defendants through an "interception device.")

An anti-crime law passed by the 1969 Legislature reserves such bugging to the province of the lawman, and only on order of a county court after evidence of criminal activities has been produced.

Attorney General Robert W. Warren said Tuesday drugs that could be valued at more than $10,000 were seized in the series of raids early Tuesday that resulted in the widespread arrests.

The ring had been averaging more than $30,000 a month in illegal sales during the past 10 months, according to Warren's office.

Center of the drug ring and site of a number of the most sizable drug seizures was Oshkosh, according to Daniel P. Hanley, an aide to Warren.

He said that three gym bags filled with dangerous substances, mainly marijuana, had been seized in the raids.

Warren said that the investigation is continuing. In addition, persons arrested in the first wave of 8 a.m. raids Tuesday have been fully identified beyond the partial identifications supplied in obtaining some arrest warrants, said Warren.

Warren said that four additional persons are being held in Winnebago County pending laboratory analysis of substances found in the course of the raids. Two persons are being held in Green Lake County pending similar tests, he said. He did not identify those individuals.

Two persons were also arrested in the raids and charged in Green Lake County with lews and lascivious conduct. They are:

James T. Schute, 21, of 558 State St., Madison and 17042 Main St., Menominee Falls;

Claudia J. Bonora, 18, of Markesan.

Charged in Fond du Lac Four additional persons have been charged in Fond du Lac County by District Attorney Alexander Semanus for possession of dangerous drugs. They are:

James William Erickson, 23, route 2, Berlin;

Edwin Bruce Algar, 19, 451 Griswold St., Ripon;

Suzanne Carol Zimmer, 18, 235 South Brooklyn Street, Berlin.

Complete identifications were also supplied for two persons arrested earlier Tuesday. They are:

Carolyn Sue Powers, 21, of 1710 Murdock Ave., Oshkosh, two counts, sale of hashish and marijuana, aid and abet sale of MDA;

David Mark Williams (previously listed as "Willie Doe"), 19, Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Newly arrested was Larry Douglas Barger, 21, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, charged with one count of sale of heroin.

Safecrackers Hit Post Office In Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — What was described as a "professional" appearing safecracking netted Post Office burglars an estimated amount of stamps and cash here Tuesday night or early today.

Burglars, who carried in their torches, pryed a rear window to enter the Post Office. Police said they found where acetylene and oxygen tanks were dragged from the bank of the Fox River to the window where the burglars entered the building.

Police also found a green pillow and a gallon water jar they believe the burglar used to muffle the sound and cool the metal as they cut into the vault.

The safecrackers were not deterred by a teargas canister that was triggered when they entered the vault. After getting into the vault, they had to cut through three sheets of metal to gain entry to the safe which contained the money and stamps.

Burglars used toweling from inside the building to erase fingerprints and they used limps to wipe footprints and other evidence from the vault.

Postal officials were summoned to assist police in the investigation. A determination of what was taken was expected to be made later today.

WMPCO, Union Try New Session

A session with a federal mediator opened this morning between the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. and representatives of striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 494.

The union, which represents about 350 striking employees of the power company, and the company, which has filed labor charges and a court damage suit, ceased negotiations about two weeks ago.

The company was struck July 9 but supervisory personnel have maintained the company's service.

Menasha Council OK's Rezoning for Smith Park Unit

MENASHA — The council, with little discussion, approved rezoning land along Smith Park to allow for construction of a 24-unit apartment building there.

The hassle isn't over yet, however, because the apartment developers must still get a building permit and a spokes man for Smith Park area residents who opposed the rezoning has held out the possibility of further action by that group.

New Assessments

Mayor James Adams, who strongly backed the rezoning effort, suggested that Smith Park opponents "consider waiting until their new property assessments come in" before taking further action.

Two Judges Are Assigned To Outagamie

Keller, Dillet Will Ease Workload, Help Clear Case Backlog

Chief Justice Harold E. Hal lows, of the State Supreme Court, Monday afternoon signed the orders temporarily assign ing two additional judges to Outagamie County. Clerk of Circuit Court Gloria Johnson was informed today.

Miss Johnson said she was told that letters confirming this action have been sent to her and should be received Thurs day. The appointments were recommended by State Court Administrator Edwin Wilkie, who recently studied the court overload.

Assigned are reserve judges Gustave Keller, Appleton, and Bernard Dillet, Shawano. Keller will help take the load off Criminal Court Branch 2 Judge Nick F. Schaefer and Dillet will assist ranch 3 Judge Raymond P. Dohr.

Starts Monday

Keller's appointment begins Monday and runs through Oct. 16 while Dillet's assignment reportedly will start in mid-August. The purpose is to help clear up the backlog of cases the two courts have built up and to help them to comply with the new state statute calling for the speedier hearing of certain cases.

Schaefer said Monday that Keller will handle trials while he would handle the arraignment and preliminary hear ings, at least initially. Keller, who is a retired county judge, will use the Circuit Courtroom for a few weeks and then a meeting room in the annex reportedly will be converted to a courtroom.

New Courtroom

County Administrator Alvin Woehler and the County Board Parks and Public Properties Committee recently ordered work to begin on remodeling the annex Social Services offices for use by Dillet.

Clerical and court reporting staffs will have to be provided for the two judges. Wilkie has said.

Outagamie has four judges, including a Circuit Court judge who also serves several other counties. However, the criminal court handles the largest volume of cases, which Schaefer noted, have more than doubled since the early 1960s.

"They may be grateful for the council, with little discussion, increased tax revenues," he said, implying that property tax assessments in the area would rise after the James Laird Co., finished its property revaluation project in the city later this year.

3rd Ward Aldermen

The council voted 9-2 Tuesday night to approve the project. The only opposition came from the two Third Ward aldermen, Sumner Parker and William Erickson.

Before the vote, City Atty. Richard Steffens said only a majority — not a three-quarter vote — would be needed to approve the rezoning. This sparked opposition from Parker, who wondered why the opposition of Mrs. Margaret Sensenbrenner, who lives next door to the 636 Nicolet Boulevard property, did not constitute enough to require a three-fourths council vote of approval.

Adjacent Land

Steffens said Mrs. Sensenbrenner's land did not constitute 20 per cent of the land adjacent to and within 100 feet of the 636 Nicolet Blvd. address.

Parker then disputed the planning commission's action designating a large area near Smith Park for multi-family living in the city's comprehensive plan. He also said that the council had not discussed the comprehensive plan, although planning commission action had recommended multi-family land use on the 636 Nicolet Blvd. lot.

5 Resignations Rock Redevelopment Unit

MENASHA — Downtown re-development here took a deepening breath Tuesday night — trying to revive itself after another setback that developed when five members of the Menasha Redevelopment Authority (MRA) resigned.

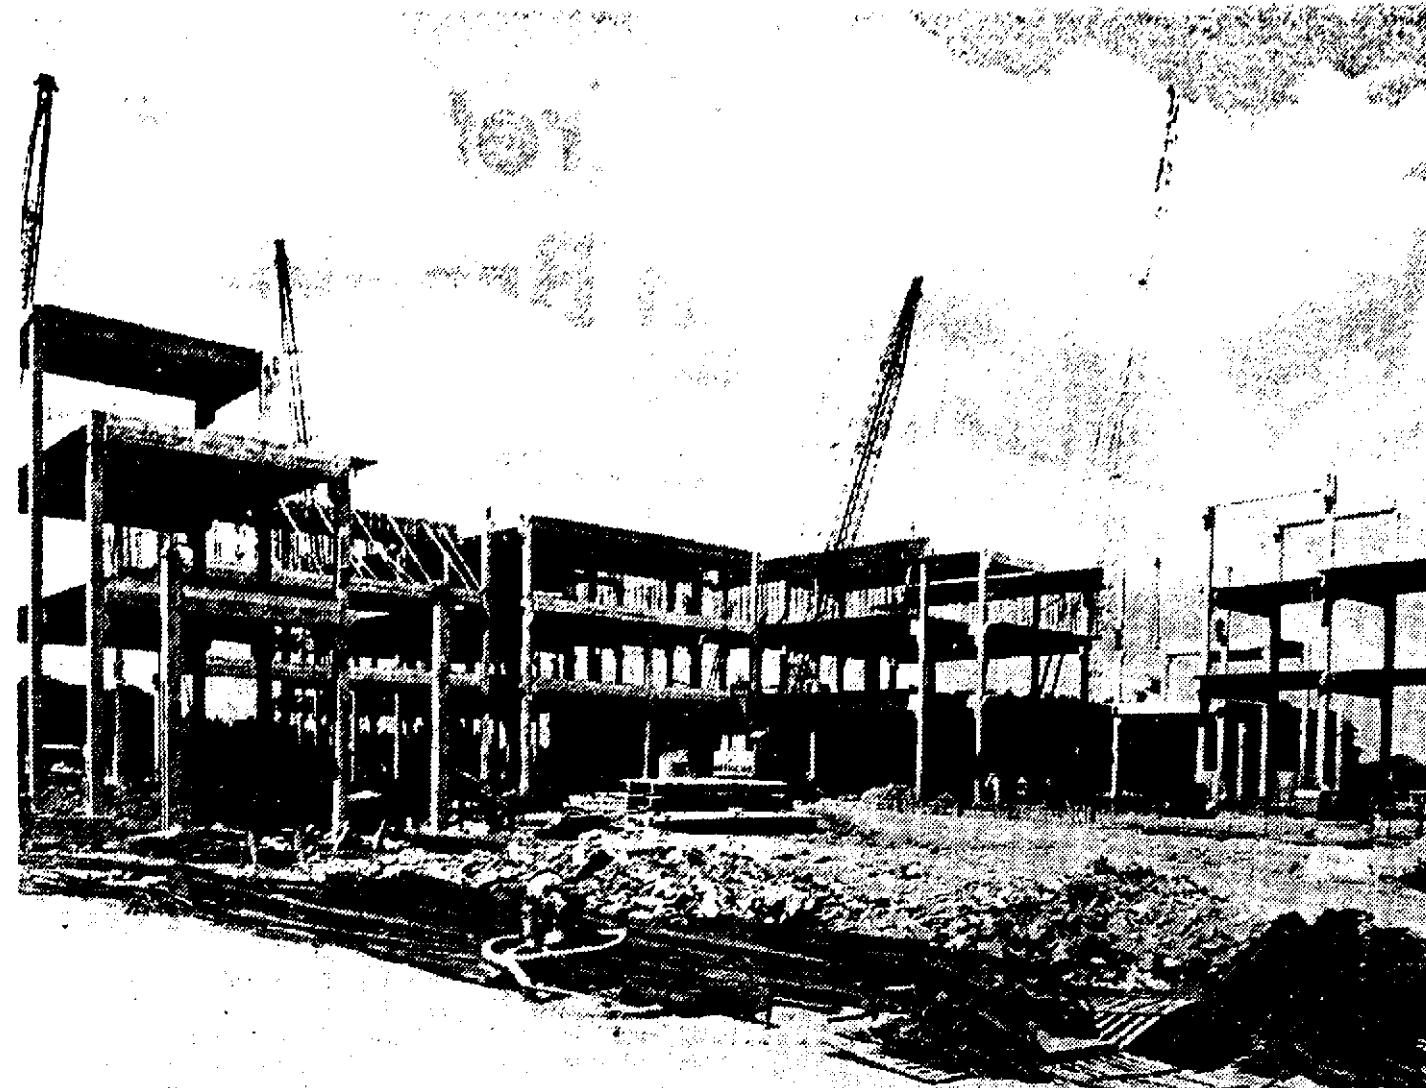

The five members — Ralph McClone, Kenyon Kimball, David Ryan, Edward Zeininger and George Banta, Jr. — asked that "other citizens of this city be given the opportunity to guide and direct the MRA in any of its future endeavors."

Not Accepted

The resignations were not accepted by the mayor and common council, however, pending a series of meetings beginning Monday to discuss where redevelopment should go next.

Mayor James Adams pro posed the meetings, and called for "volunteers" from the common council to attend several informal and closed meetings to come up with proposals for future redevelopment action.

At that time, the MRA resignations will be accepted or rejected, depending on what the "volunteers" come up with. The two-page letter of resignation did not include the name of Ald. Walter Rummel, sixth member of the group.

Winnebago OK's Rock Fest Controls

BY BILL HURRLE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — With only one murmur of disapproval, the County Board unanimously passed a hurriedly put together ordinance regulating assemblies of over 5,000 persons. It was clearly aimed at rock fests.

Only Supv. Herman Brandt, Towns of Omro and Utica, expressed dissent. "It casts a shadow on our society when we have to pass this kind of resolution preventing our kids from getting together."

8-Page Ordinance

The eight-page ordinance was drafted by corporation counsel Gerald Engeldinger and was basically the same as the one prepared by Atty. Gen. Robert Warren. Warren sent out the ordinance after the Iola rock fest, June 26-28, stirred some citizen anxieties.

In his presentation of the ordinance to the board, Engeldinger admitted it had been put together quickly. "I won't even profess to know this ordinance in its entirety," he said.

The lengthy ordinance was not read to the board.

Warren's July 14th letter accompanying the ordinance left no doubt that it was aimed at counter-culture youth. "This permit and regulation can have the effect of driving out of the rock festival business those fly-by-night operators and promoters whose only concern is the pursuit of a fast dollar through the mechanism of corruption of youth and the disruption of community life."

Any doubt that the ordinance pertained to other forms of assembly than rock fests was quelled in the board's brief discussion of it.

Boy Scout Jamboree

A tentative motion to increase to 7,000 the number of persons permitted to assembly for over 18 hours was defeated. It was advanced to allow Boy Scouts jamborees without the elaborate license, logistic and planning requirements demanded by the ordinance.

"If it is a Boy Scout jamboree, we don't have to be too careful of the count anyway," quipped Supv. Donald F. Arne, Oshkosh.

The ordinance itself carefully excepts government fairs, contracted annual conventions such as the Experimental Aircraft

Associations, or assemblies held in regularly established places of worship or stadiums.

The basic provision is that any assembly of 5,000 or more persons for 18 hours requires a license. That could be had only by applying six weeks in advance, posting a bond equal to $1 per person expected, paying a $100 per day fee and getting approval for the elaborate logistics required.

Soap and Water

Required are toilets "which shall meet all state and local specifications" at the ratio of 1 per 200 females and 1 per 300 males. These have to "have a lavatory with running water under pressure and a continuous supply of soap and water." At a gathering Iola's size, over 2,000 of these would have been needed.

Security must be handled by off-duty policemen or licensed private guards such as Pinkertons at the ratio of one cop for each 750 persons. There has to be a people-proof fence about the site.

Town Pledges Fight On Annexation

MENASHA — The city's annexation committee approved a 96-acre annexation by the city Tuesday afternoon, then went into an executive session to discuss another.

In its first public meeting since the election of Mayor James Adams, the committee elected officers and then approved a proposed annexation of 96.16 acres of Town of Menasha land to the city.

The prime industrial land stretches from Midway Road almost to Valley Road.

If the annexation gets council approval, the town board has vowed that it will not give up the land without a hard-fought court test.

Contest Annexation

Meeting Tuesday night, the town board restated its stand that it will take the annexation to court. "We will contest any annexation which comes without the consent of the people," Town Chairman Roland Kampo stated, with board members, Frederick Miller and Robert Wisner voicing their strong agreement.

Kampo was referring to the absence of some landowners' signatures on the petition which has been presented to the city. They include owners of Shopko Discount Store and the Spur service station at State 47 and Midway Road.

"Of course, it's not annexed yet," Kampo pointed out, referring to the Menasha city council which must approve it before it becomes official.

After the city annexation committee approved the 96-acre annexation, it went into executive session to discuss another one which City Atty. Richard Steffens said, "isn't out the window yet," despite drawn out discussions.

Adams said today that there could be announcement of another city annexation "within six months."

Architect Payments

County members of the committee also asked the city to help clear up any payments to George Narovec & Associates, architects contracted by the county for work on the joint facility. Since some $22,286.75 could be recouped by going back to an earlier Sauter-Seaborn Architects, Ltd., plan, the costs to Narovec should be cleared up, Hilser said.

The Joint Safety Building Committee could then be dissolved, a new committee formed, and formal relations could begin that actually would get the safety facility built, DelaHunt said. "And we'll resolve the parking in whatever way it has to be done," he said.

Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer of 563, said the union "felt that Ayers had assumed the role of chief negotiator for the city" since the personnel director had left in the fall. He noted that he had negotiated with City Council committees in the past.

Ald. George Reynolds (7th), a member of the public safety committees, said the committee had challenged Ayers several months ago when he brought forth the so called agreement. "To us, that was an unusual procedure," having only Ayers negotiate, he testified.

He said the City Council named retired industrial-labor negotiator Walter Mumme, Appleton, in October, 1969, to "handle all negotiations for contracts for city employees" until a personnel director was hired.

Sgt. Elmer Marx, Appleton police department traffic bureau, testified he had made a survey of certain corners where crossing guards were situated. He found they spent less than the four hours per day for which they are paid, he said.

The crossing guards are women who assist private and public school children, across streets in the morning, noon and afternoon.

nickel fare increases under authority contained in the PSC approval to split the corporate structure, but so far has continued to operate with an open door policy within the city. City spokesmen suggested Tuesday this may be in conflict with PSC orders, and William R. Brumfield, PSC director of transportation regulation, said he would confer privately with the company officials on the matter.

Since Fox River has not transferred the city routes to the subsidiary company, however, Mrs. Kuepper said today the rate change can be employed without the closed-door policy. The rate hikes affect routes within the city and on W. College Avenue in the Town of Grand Chute only.

Mrs. Kuepper said Monday, the first day of operations under the higher fares, was "very encouraging."

Champion laid heavy stress on the city's unwillingness, if it should decide to continue a subsidy, to pay for services outside the city boundaries.

School Bus Policies

He said that is a basic reason behind seeking separate accounting procedures, and it also underlies the consideration being given to putting city and school bus operations into one firm. Champion said a major reshuffling of school bus policies is being investigated, whether through the local Board of Education or state legislative action.

The school system hires buses for daily school transportation outside the city and charters buses for field trips, extra-curricular activities and athletic events. Champion pointed out the city pays 83 per cent of the

HGC Will Close
Clintonville Plant

CLINTONVILLE — H G C Inc., formerly Hansen Glove Corp., is closing its plant here.

General production will be halted about the end of next week, William Martens, plant manager, confirmed today.

The firm, which a few years ago employed about 250 persons from the Clintonville region, has been cutting back production significantly since May, following a general decline in the glove business the past few years.

The shutdown is part of a consolidation and complete transition of the 99-year-old Milwaukee-based glove manufacturer to production of participant sportswear, including tennis fashions, snowmobile suits, and in September, a new line of golf ware.

With this diversification, only plants in Boston and Merrill will be maintained, with the Clintonville tennis sportswear production being transferred to Boston, said Edward O. Gerhardt, president. He attributed the change to a decline in the use of gloves.

Began Conversion

The company began the conversion in January when it brought the tennis sportswear production to Clintonville and all but eliminated glove production there. It was at that time the name was changed from Hansen Glove Corp.

The employment had fallen to about 135-140 persons then, mostly women. Martens said that only 12 to 15 production people are on the job today, plus supervisory personnel.

At peak production, the firm had produced nearly 3,000 dozen gloves per week. Martens said. He said the supervisory personnel would be staying on after production shutdown to liquidate the machinery and equipment. The workers on the job now are mainly involved in cleanup, he added.

Martens said that a few years ago at peak employment, the company had been a strong secondary employer in Clintonville, with only FWD Corp. employing more persons.

Social Changes

Gerhardt said that social changes have forced the conversion and reluctant closing of the Clintonville plant. "Women are beginning to deny the importance of the glove as a fashion necessity," he said, noting other clothing items are facing the same crisis.

For this reason, HGC decided it must consolidate and change its line, he said, and "when you're starting out all over again, it's just like starting from scratch so it's necessary to economize in every direction."

He questioned whether gloves and other clothing items ever would come back into common usage.

Gerhardt praised the community of Clintonville and promised that "our interest is to bring another industry in to utilize the plant at Clintonville. We'll do everything to see that that happens."

He added that HGC wants "to do everything we can to insure some continuity of production and continuity of payroll in that community."

Clintonville Mayor Frank Sinkewicz said the Clintonville Industrial Development Corp. has been seeking a new industry and has some prospects.

He described the city's relationship with the company as "very good" over the years. He said the impact of the industry leaving has been reduced because it has been a generally slow decline over the past few years.

The firm started in Clintonville in 1943 and expanded twice. It maintained a regular glove production until January when it converted.

erty and use it as a sanitary landfill.

Kloehn urged that a public hearing be held and asked also that people at the council session be heard. Rogers noted that "Some council members don't want to hear objections," indicating it would be frustrating for people who wished to object. He said a hearing would be in the public interest, but would prove useless.

Ald. Russel Dix (4th) said that he originally opposed the sanitary landfill program, but after all studies revealed this to be the most effective and economical at this time, he would go along with it. However, he had no objection to a public hearing, he said.

Ald. George Simon (3rd) pointed to the license approval from the DNR and the excellence of the site and the plans approved by the state, which called for the site to be operated according to all state standards.

Ald. Richard Gerrits (2nd) indicated he was willing to sacrifice a small portion of a conservancy area to solve a serious problem. Noting city ownership of the area, he said it would be impossible for town officials to prevent the city from using the site. With 100 tons of garbage produced a day and no place to put it, he said, the city could be in serious straits. Gerrits spoke in favor of keeping it strictly for the city use, not for joint use by other communities or Outagamie County.

No Guarantee

Kloehn guaranteed that with council seats changing, mayors being defeated and other changes in government, residents had no assurance the landfill site would be used under plans prepared by the present city engineer.

Two people spoke against the site, expressing fear of a rat problem and river pollution while another reported on a sanitary landfill operation in a neighboring community, told of its effectiveness and overall improvement over previous methods and foresaw future use of landfill area for industrial development or park purposes.

Rogers accused other aldermen of joining with major industries in creating a pollution problem. He said the taxpayers of Kaukauna were paying for industry through providing a disposal site, whereas industries in other communities paid for their own waste disposal.

He said the landfill would be outmoded within 10 years and the city would be "stuck" with costly, yet valuable wooded land where wildlife should be preserved.

Ald. Robert Vondracek asked that discussion be closed, saying Kaukauna had too long been a follower. It is time the city became a leader if it wished to progress, he added.

Rogers then attempted to have the purchase resolution amended to include rezoning of the land for sanitary landfill purposes prior to purchase. His motion was defeated 8-2.

Sentence Delayed
For Snowmobile,
Trailer Thefts

A presentence investigation has been ordered for Donald Johnson, 31, 1425 N. Viola St., who this morning was found guilty of a theft charge.

Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren set sentencing for Aug. 10. Johnson changed an innocent plea to no contest. He was to have had a jury trial today.

Johnson remains free on a signature bond.

Johnson took two snowmobiles, and the trailer on which they were kept from the property of Thomas Rabideau, 2209 Riverside Drive, Little Chute, on Feb. 5.

The charge is a felony, and carries up to five years in prison.

Pair Attempted
Armed Robbery
With Can Opener

Two 18-year-old rural Waupaca County youths, found guilty by a circuit court jury June 30 of attempted armed robbery, were placed on three years probation Tuesday to the State Department of Health and Social Services.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell stayed a three year sentence to the state reformatory at Green Bay for Ronald M. McKvit, route 1, Fremont, and Jeffrey Thiel, rural Weyauwega.

The youths were arrested early on March 5 by Appleton police, shortly after they attacked Robert C. Kleinhans, 19, as the boy walked to his downtown apartment at 123½ W. College Ave. about 1 a.m.

The pair was armed with a can opener and switchblade knife at the time of the attack, though testimony during trial revealed that the knife was not used. Kleinhans testified that McKvit held the can opener to his throat and demanded "your money or your life."

The youths lived in Appleton at the time. They were also ordered by Parnell to pay court costs. Thiel must undergo counseling as a result of the incident.

From Villa Hope

Two young Appleton men appeared this morning in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on charges of petty theft.

Norm Burmeister, 22, 121 N. Drew St., and Dale Garvin, 21, 920 E. Franklin St., are charged by Appleton detectives with taking several food items from Villa Hope, 116½ S. Walnut St., Sunday.

Burmeister, who pleaded guilty to the count this morning, County Judge Nick F. Schaefer ordered a presentence investigation. Sentencing will be Thursday morning. He is being held in the county jail without bond.

Garvin pleaded innocent and will have an Aug. 3 trial. Bond was set at $100.

Two residents of the home told authorities they saw the pair make off with six hamburger patties, some noodles and popcorn, and that one of them said, "Do you think Father will miss a little food?"

The complaint was brought by the Rev. Timon Costello, who runs the home.

Our National Goals

About a year ago President Nixon set up a National Goals Research staff to determine what ought to be the course of life in the United States for the next few decades. The staff has now issued a report titled "Toward Balanced Growth: Quantity With Quality."

There are some interesting sections of the report but it neglects to include the major problems of the day; the war in Vietnam, the extent of urban problems, race prejudice and campus unrest. White House spokesmen have explained that the study was aimed at finding out what future crises may face the nation and try to determine ways of avoiding them rather than dealing in any way with current ones. But it seems a little difficult to figure out what future problems are going to be without considering the ones we have now and what their effect is likely to be unless they are solved. If the war drags on, there will be less money for assisting the cities with their vast problems of crime, drugs and crowding. If race relations get worse, there may be greater violence in a number of areas. If the campuses explode, many may close down and all of this is bound to have an impact upon the next few decades.

But the report does emphasize that a major fact that must be acknowledged in future planning is that man is more important than machines. "The traditional view of population growth as a source of national pride and strength is being re-examined . . . The merits of sheer size now appear more debatable than heretofore, particularly in the case of the large metropolitan areas . . . Wealth is not synonymous with happiness . . . Growth in economic terms is not to be valued for its own sake, but in terms of whether it contributes to those objectives which, taken together, constitute the quality of our lives."

The report warned against further concentrations of population in the metropolitan areas in that by the year 2,000 half the nation's population may live in the three largest megalopolises and 70 per cent in only 12 metropolitan areas unless our current patterns change. "Our nation in 1980 could be one in which cities are more clogged with immovable traffic, air is less breathable, streams polluted to the point where expensive processes will be necessary to get usable water, seashores deteriorating more rapidly." On the other hand the report said that America "can be a nation which will have begun to restore its environment, to have more balanced distribution of regional economic development and population; a nation which has abolished hunger and many forms of social inequity and deprivation." Economic growth should continue, the report went on, but the issue is "how we can ensure continued economic growth while directing our resources more deliberately to filling our new values."

The report also suggested that the fear of an immense population explosion may be over-exaggerated. This is likely to be the most controversial point of view in the report and opposed by those who feel that unless our population growth is reduced close to zero in the next few decades the problems of enough food and of pollution will be insoluble.

The emphasis upon quality is a healthy one. But the report offers little in the way of suggestions on how to change our directions. It warns that Americans may not want to pay the cost of pollution abating methods. It makes no suggestions on how the populations of urban areas can be dispersed, social inequities overcome, hunger done away with.

Such a study probably does no harm. Perhaps it may encourage the Nixon Administration to make some changes, such as abandoning the SST and encouraging the opening up of suburban areas to ghetto dwellers through the dispersing of industry and better mass transportation.

But former President Eisenhower set up such a study group which submitted its report to the White House in 1960. It called for increasing aid to education which was done although the nation's inflation to a large extent negated the effect. Its calls to reverse the decay of the large cities and to eliminate "the last stubborn barriers" of religious, racial and sex discrimination were not heeded by very many people in the nation.

Deer Management Decade

Some of the nature loving purists among us tend to regard with some disdain the hunter with his high powered rifle who ranges the forests each November in search of the white-tail deer which is Wisconsin's most numerous and most valuable big game animal.

They sometimes show also some skepticism about the State Department of Natural Resources counsel that the deer is a crop of the land, even as are the farmers' cattle and other livestock, and that the land has a limited capacity to produce wild life.

Both conceptions are throw-backs to the earliest days of the wildlife protection movement. Here and elsewhere, when game management simply meant limiting the harvest and punishing with severity the game poachers. Curiously enough, some of the most avid of the deer hunters tend to be nearly conservative about deer hunting rules as those of their neighbors who want to save the deer as a beautiful creature, the sight of which gives pleasure.

For a quarter of a century the biologists who advise the fish and game rule makers at Madison have been preaching the idea of adjusting the annual harvest to the carrying capacity of the deer range, which in some seasons includes taking fawn deer as well as the bucks which were the only deer our self-respecting grandfathers would design to bring home from the forest.

The new idea finally prevailed, but it took time, abundant controversy, and some political risks for the men who directed the old Conservation Department which lately has become a part of the Department of Natural Resources. For a decade, for example, the state has had so-called "variable quota" seasons, meaning that zones were delineated for harvesting numbers according to the condition of the range and the numbers and condition of the deer.

This year the DNR wanted to establish more of such variable quota districts than the Wisconsin Conservation Congress, usually controlled by sportsmen, would willingly permit. The result: the department has modified its shooting season for the fall, against its own judgment, as a concession to public opinion. The hunting interest is a conservative one, it is worth emphasizing. The probable result is that the number of deer taken next fall will be from 75,000 to 80,000, although the department hopes that in 1971 a more generous quota can be established so that a total legal bag of 100,000 animals, or about equal to that of last fall, can be arranged. The deer specialists are also confident that Wisconsin hunters can continue to take from 70,000 to 100,000 animals each year, indefinitely.

Remembering that a 100,000 harvest is almost double that of the best of the "bucks only" seasons of old, the idea of scientific deer management appears to have proved itself to all open-minded persons interested in the wildlife resources of the state.

Secretary of State Rogers Not Heard in White House

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — In the way that Indianapolis goes for auto racing and Forest Hills for tennis, Washington savors a good, dirty fight between the President and a member of his Cabinet. So this past week the local fans have naturally been all agog about a rumble between the White House and the State Department on the issues of peace in the Far East and the Near East.

But beneath the drama, there is a genuine problem. It is the problem of defining a recognizable role for Secretary of State William Rogers.

By tradition, the Secretary of State is supposed to be the President's chief adviser in foreign policy. But Mr. Rogers came to the job with little knowledge of his subject. Considerable evidence suggests that he is still not familiar with the details of important problems.

Peace Prospects Gloomy
In an interview which surfaced last week, for example, the Secretary asserted the prospects for Vietnam peace talks were gloomy and gave as the reason that the Cambodian operations had increased Chinese influence in North Vietnam. The Chinese, he said, "use Hanoi as their instrumentality for causing trouble."

Potomac Fever —

Chet Huntley says President Nixon is shallow. White House reaction: that ol' Walter Cronkite is one heckuva newscaster.

Fresh from her trip to Peru, Pat Nixon plans another mission of mercy: a flying visit to Wall Street with assurances from Dick that things are bound to get better soon.

In his spare time, Spiro Agnew likes to raise things: funds among Republicans and hackles among Democrats.

Dick Nixon says he's proud to have ushered in an era of negotiation. . . and now if Hanoi would just usher in a few negotiators.

The State Department admits the Paris peace talks have hit an all-time low. In fact, they'd be pleased if Hanoi would even negotiate in bad faith.

Dick Nixon says there can be only one commander-in-chief. . . and he'll thank Martha Mitchell to pipe down.

Vocational Training Offered to People Where They Reside

BY EUGENE I. LEHRMANN
MADISON — The Wisconsin system of vocational, technical and adult education has been described as the state's educational system that "fills the gap," training for jobs.

Still, regardless of major contributions to the state's educational picture since 1911, there are those who do not Lehrmann understand what the VTAE system of today has to offer. One way to better know and understand the system is to take a look at its declared mission.

This is spelled out in a mission statement published by the Wisconsin Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education.

Board Accepts Mandate
It says that the board "accepts the mandate of the people as expressed in state legislation" and that: "This mandate is implemented by developing and maintaining high quality post-secondary (after high school) vocational, technical and adult education services throughout the state."

The statement also explains that the unique Wisconsin system is guided by an independent state agency, the Wisconsin Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education, through 18 autonomous VTAE districts. The entire state, effective July 1, is now being served through the 18 districts set by law.

Vocational education for high school-age youth is supervised by the state Department of Public Instruction through local public school districts.

Where the People Are

The job training activities conducted by the vocational, technical and adult education districts are based on needs of the people where they are, when they need the training. This can be anything from a short workshop on a highly specialized subject to the full two-year Associate Degree in a technical subject.

Some are fulltime at a formal educational facility. Some are part-time, in a public school building, in a store front, or in an agricultural, industrial, business or governmental setting.

The name of the system, vocational, technical and adult education, grew as service was modernized and expanded over the years.

Responsibilities Explained
The mission statement documents the three responsibilities from which the name is derived:

"Vocational education" is that education which is designed to provide individuals with skills, knowledges and attitudes for initial entrance into, and advancement within, occupations or groups of related occupations requiring a high proportion of manipulative skills. (The emphasis is on learning how to do things).

"Technical education" is a phase or level of vocational education designed to prepare individuals for entrance into,

Eugene Lehrmann is assistant state director of vocational and adult education. The Board of Vocational and Adult Education has designated him to succeed to the directorship of the state system next Jan. 1, succeeding Clarence Greiber, who will retire at that time. Lehrmann's report substitutes today for the usual state affairs column of John Wyngaard.

and progress within, technical occupations in which success is dependent largely upon technical information and understanding.

"Adult education" refers to part-time education designed for adults. It may be either general, vocational, or technical.

Individual Emphasized

The mission statement also reaffirms that "The individual is most important. The system evaluates his abilities, talents and interests, accepts him where he is, then helps him develop his skills, knowledge and attitudes and appreciation to the full potential in order to prepare him for work and to help him improve as a happy, self-sufficient and responsible citizen."

This is Wisconsin's modern vocational, technical and adult education system. It is yours. Visit a school and learn about the many ways it can serve you.

Youth Protest May Eventually Stop War

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everybody is "against" war. The U. S. says it is against war. Stalin said he was against war. Even Hitler said he was against war.

What governments usually mean by this statement is that they are against war as long as they can get their own way by other means. If the other means fail, they will resort to war.

But to be genuinely and meaningfully against war is to be against the preconditions that create war and make it inevitable. These preconditions are: anarchy among nations, the lack of an international court, and the absence of an international police force.

Until the nations are willing to give up some of their external authority — just as cities give up some to the states, and the states to the nation — then there is no way to resolve national disputes except by force and violence. It is as simple, and as difficult, as that.

First of all, we must get over the thought that war is a "natural" social phenomenon, when it is in truth a disease of mankind. In earlier eras, it was thought that cannibalism was "natural"; later, it was believed that slavery was "natural." Both these practices have been abandoned in the world, and there is no rational reason that war cannot be repudiated by the mass of mankind.

In my view, it will never voluntarily be repudiated by governments as such. Governments have too much of a stake in ruling ever to relinquish any part of their authority — dubious as that authority is in this age of mass-retaliation and mutual destruction.

It is the peoples of the world, acting in concert, who must persuade their governments to adopt "law and order" in the international sphere, just as those governments urge us to follow law and order in the domestic sphere. How absurd for a government to preach a doctrine of "non-violence" to its own citizens, and to practice ruthless violence abroad whenever it so desires. What an immoral contradiction!

In my view, also, the student protest movement is the most heartening sign of a moral revolution in this era. The students are not merely objecting to our involvement in Vietnam; they want to stop war altogether, so that other Vietnams do not crop up yearly.

This can be done only by youth calling across the barriers of nations; by students appealing to students in all other countries, by going over the heads of governments and arousing and mobilizing young people everywhere. I don't think that even the Russians or Chinese could control their own youth in the face of a world wide movement to stamp out the pandemic disease of war that has for too long afflicted the best, the bravest and the youngest of mankind.

Experts Sharply Split On Nuclear Pollution

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two California scientists who say federal standards allow people too much exposure to radiation are locked in a bitter, name-calling battle with the Atomic Energy Commission while the nuclear power industry watches uneasily.

Radiation exposure limits are ten times too high, say Drs. John Gofman and Arthur Tamplin of the AEC-financed Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Livermore, Calif. They have more support in the scientific community than the AEC likes to admit.

Gofman and Tamplin say if every American got the maximum permissible dose of radiation, cancer deaths would increase by 32,000 a year.

Unfounded and incorrect, says the AEC. The maximum dose is so small it's impossible to single out any harmful effects it might have, contend AEC scientists.

"These people ask you to produce human corpses," says Gofman of the AEC. "No corpses, no action."

"Wild Tangent"

"This is the third time Gofman's taken off on a wild tangent," responds Dr. John Totter, head of the AEC's division of biology and medicine.

Totter dismisses Tamplin, who came up with the 32,000 figure, as "a biophysicist with no experimental background in biology . . . It's very common for physical scientists to make mistakes in biology."

But Gofman and Tamplin have support from scientists including Joshua Lederberg, winner of a Nobel Prize in Medicine; Linus Pauling, only man ever to win two Nobel Prizes; Dr. E. B. Lewis, expert on the effects of low doses of radiation, and Dr. Karl Z. Morgan, director of the health physics division of Oak Ridge National Laboratory and a member of the National Council on Radiation Protection.

Watching this debate from the sidelines with a multibillion-dollar interest is the power industry with its 17 nuclear plants now generating electricity, 47 under construction and 48 more proposed.

AEC Role

What role should the AEC, as both regulator and promoter of atomic energy, play in such controversies?

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, AEC chairman, said in an interview he believes the AEC "should be presenting all sides of the arguments. However, when there are attacks on the AEC and on individuals, I think it is natural for the individuals involved to try to defend themselves and to answer the attacks and the arguments that have been put forth."

The Gofman and Tamplin controversy started in 1969, when Tamplin was asked by the AEC to examine claims by Dr. E. J. Sternglass, director of radiology at the University of Pittsburgh, that fallout had caused 400,000 prenatal or infant deaths.

Tamplin said he determined that Sternglass was way off in his estimate. Tamplin came up with the figure of 32,000 deaths and then wrote a rebuttal to Sternglass' findings in which he included his own calculations.

Totter telephoned Gofman and Tamplin Aug. 13 and said he thought Tamplin's rebuttal of Sternglass' findings was just or fine. But he saw no reason for including Tamplin's own calculations in the same article. Gofman and Tamplin disagreed.

From then on the debate became more heated.

Asked about Tamplin, Totter says, "We never at any time trusted Tamplin's figures since he has been there (Livermore)."

Totter says he actually protected both Tamplin and Gofman from other AEC officials who wanted to drop them long ago.

Yet Tamplin, for example, shows letters from such groups as the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, the U.S. Public Health Service and the National Academy of Sciences asking him to participate in studies of the effects of radiation exposure.

Proponents of the AEC position that the radiation standards were more than adequate fanned out to give their views.

Thos J. Thompson, an AEC commissioner told a meeting in Las Vegas that environmentalists were carrying concern with small traces of radioactivity to a ridiculous extreme.

"It is as though we decided not to get out of bed any more because we might slip on the way to the bathroom," said Thompson. "It is a sign of age—of giving up, of growing old, of decaying."

Solid Audience

Dr. William Bibb, a biologist at AEC headquarters in Germantown, Md., and frequent pro-AEC speaker, said "The public is scared of radiation and under the direction of Gordon anyone who reinforce their Kotlosky."

fears is going to get a solid audience."

Gofman and Tamplin were getting a solid and widespread audience.

But the reins began to tighten. Early in May, Tamplin was notified he was being charged vacation time for days spent in March and April at a conference at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions session of the American Cancer Society and an environmental teach-in for members of Congress and science writers.

His appeal was denied on the grounds that "in all cases the trip and your involvement in the meeting was beyond the scope of your laboratory assignment."

Staff Cut

Soon after the start of the new fiscal year July 1, Gofman complained he had lost two people from his 12-member staff.

Tamplin's staff of 12 was cut to one research assistant.

The AEC responded that the staff reductions were part of budget cuts forcing elimination of 4,000 lab jobs.

The AEC added that the Livermore facility, operated by the University of California under contract from the AEC, "has maintained a policy of encouraging free scientific discussion."

Neither the AEC nor the laboratory has abridged the freedom of Drs. Gofman and Tamplin to speak out on the issues.

The AEC is locked in the radiation standards battle even though all today's nuclear plants operate well within the stricter standard proposed by Gofman and Tamplin.

Rigid Standards

Why doesn't the AEC adopt the more rigid standard which apparently would change nothing?

"We think it would be just as wrong for us to arbitrarily lower the standards that have been set by experts not only in this country but all over the world as it would be to go above the standards," says chairman Seaborg.

According to Seaborg, the standards are under study and if the experts conclude they should be revised, "we would be happy, of course, to comply."

Some companies with nuclear plants under construction reportedly plan to announce they will voluntarily adhere to a much lower release of radiation than the standards require.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. has built nine nuclear plants and says their radiation leakage is rarely more than one per cent of the existing standard.

Minnesota attempted to require a power company to adhere to stricter standards. The AEC and the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy opposed the state.

But the power company couldn't wait for the three to resolve their differences. It agreed to build a plant that met the stricter standards.

Crux of Argument

The debate over the effects of low doses of radiation centers around this question: If a given dose of radiation can be shown to cause 100 cases of cancer within a population sample, will a dose one-tenth as large result in ten cases, and will a dose one hundredth as large result in one case?

Gofman and Tamplin contend this sort of direct, straight line relationship exists.

Many researchers such as Dr. John Store of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, disagree. Storer believes that evidence shows that with exposure to very small amounts of radiation, the harmful effect drops off sharply.

Strong Case

But Lewis, a biologist at Califormore."

Applications Filed For Gas Service in Town of Freedom

YET Tamplin, for example, shows letters from such groups as the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, the U.S. Public Health Service and the National Academy of Sciences asking him to participate in studies of the effects of radiation exposure.

To Your Good Health Conjunctivitis Has Many Varied Forms

eyes burn and get watery, it's a Dear, Dr. Thosteson: What causes conjunctivitis? Is there a cure? Is it catching? Does it cause blindness?—C.B.

Lewis believes, however, their estimates of 32,000 deaths is about double what the figure would turn out to be.

Pauling, a veteran of battles with the AEC over nuclear weapons tests and radioactive fallout, says of the Gofman and Tamplin estimate: "I don't think they've exaggerated at all. My own estimate is two or three fold higher."

All the figures are estimates, because no one knows. As Lederberg put it, there is a "threshold of visibility"—a dose below which scientists can't be sure whether cell damage was caused by the radiation or something else.

Lederberg cited this uncertainty as reason enough for adopting a stricter standard, coupling it with intensive research.

Conservative Terms

"You don't want to deal with the health of the public on any but the most conservative terms," he said.

Another prestigious supporter of Gofman and Tamplin is Morgan, of Oak Ridge, a scientist more closely identified with the AEC. "The more I think about your hypothesis," Morgan wrote to Gofman "the more convinced I am of its validity."

The AEC proposed recently that radiation from power plants be voluntarily kept "as far below this guide as practicable."

Prof. Thomas Pigford, a nuclear engineer at the University of California and a member of the AEC's Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, said it shouldn't be left to power companies to volunteer to keep releases far below the standard accepted by the AEC. If that standard represents too great a public health risk, then the AEC should say so and adopt a stricter standard, he said.

Safety First

"I disagree with people who say if we lower standards we will force nuclear power into an uneconomical position," said Pigford. "We should evaluate safety first and then economics."

According to AEC projections of power use, nuclear plants now generate one per cent but by the year 2000 will generate 69 per cent.

Seaborg and other AEC officials predict breeder reactors will be operational in the 1990's and because they produce their own plutonium fuel might, in Seaborg's words, "lead to the production of electricity at costs that would be spectacularly low by today's standards."

The first attempt to operate a breeder reactor in a commercial power plant occurred in the Enrico Fermi plant near Detroit. Early in October 1966, the plant was started up and immediately things went wrong.

The cooling system failed and the radioactive fuel elements melted—what is considered the worst accident likely to occur in a nuclear plant. After several tense days, the situation was brought under control.

Cooling Failed

Advocates of nuclear power plants point out that despite the accident none of the deadly, highly radioactive fission got out of the Fermi plant. No one was injured.

Opponents claim the plant came within a hairsbreadth of blowing up and scattering radioactivity over the city of Detroit.

The AEC does not treat power plants lightly. Surveillance is intense during construction and afterward. All safety systems are multiple so if one doesn't work there is a backup.

The AEC so far has refused to permit construction of a plant in a city.

Under Ground

But Dr. Edward Teller, father of the hydrogen bomb, said he believes "a big nuclear plant 700 feet underground on Manhattan Island is safer than one 70 miles away on the surface."

The AEC contends the chances of any accident that would release radioactivity are so slight as to be virtually nonexistent.

So far the power industry's safety record is perfect. But there aren't many plants and few have been operating more than a year or two.

In 1967, an AEC-commissioned study estimated that if a power plant released a large amount of radiation, loss of life would be in the thousands and dollar loss would be in the billions.

One expert now with particularly strong misgivings is David E. Lilienthal, first chairman of the AEC. Says Lilienthal: "Once a bright hope shared by all mankind, including myman, the rash proliferation of atomic power plants has become one of the ugliest clouds hanging over America."

Conjunctivitis sometimes is seen in elderly folks because the lower lids may fold or sag outward, exposing the conjunctiva to dust, dryness, and similar irritants, as well as infection.

Nutritional deficiencies, especially vitamin A, can lead to conjunctivitis in some infants.

Trachoma, more prevalent in Asia, Africa, and some parts of the Middle East, is a particularly savage form of conjunctivitis caused by germs. It is contagious, too, and can become chronic irritation.

When this membrane becomes irritated and inflamed, the conjunctiva may be irri- (ated by dust, smoke, exposure to wind or too much direct sun, chemical fumes.

Allergy can cause conjunctivitis—when a hay fever sufferer's eyes burn and get watery, it's a form of conjunctivitis.

Generally speaking, however, the cases of conjunctivitis stemming from germ infections are more severe.

The rather common childhood "pink eye" can be cleared up quite readily, but it is highly contagious and a youngster should be isolated until it clears.

Gonorrhea can cause gonorrheal conjunctivitis in newborn babies and result in blindness.

Drops of silver nitrate are used at birth to prevent this.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A drive to persuade the federal government to strengthen its food products standards by including requirements for explicit ingredient labeling for the guidance of the consumer has been started by the Agriculture Committee of the Wisconsin Assembly.

State Rep. Norbert Nuttleman, R-La Crosse, presiding at a session of the committee here, said he is encouraged by the support for the proposal recently tendered at a meeting of the Midwestern Conference of the Council of State Governments.

Nuttleman said the responsibility for consumer information on the ingredients of food rests with the national government, because most food moves in interstate commerce.

Support for Idea
Technical specialists representing the University of Wisconsin and the state department of Agriculture supported the idea of more strict labeling requirements by the national government. Dr. Henry Scott of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation noted that the state and federal governments now have food standards requirements, but said that the consumer should have direct information about the ingredients in foods on the market.

The mostly rural members of the Legislative Interim Study Committee indicated that ingredient labeling is justified on general grounds, but noted that the need is especially urgent for some individual consumers. Some persons suffer from allergies, legislators said, and are entitled to know the contents of food on the market for their protection.

Committee members also found some of the present labeling rules of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration inadequate.

Label Requirements
They pointed out that "imitation hams" are required to carry a label showing water content if it reaches 10 per cent, but that hams with a larger content of water are also sold as "imitation" hams without the volume of water specified.

Such hams are typically sliced for retail sale, without labeling, with the result that the buyer is unaware of the water ingredient, it was said.

Several witnesses while supporting the idea of complete ingredient labeling of all foodstuffs, including beverages, said that it would not afford complete information guarantees to the consumer.

About one-third of all the meals consumed in America are served to persons away from home, as they travel, or as they are served in institutions, it was pointed out.

Oshkosh Man Gets 6 Years

Forged 15 Checks In Three Counties During May, June

A 31-year-old Oshkosh man was sentenced to six years in the state prison at Waupun Tuesday on 15 counts of check forgery.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell ordered the term for James L. Veach, who pleaded guilty Tuesday to 11 charges of forgery consolidated from Winnebago and Fond du Lac Counties.

Veach previously pleaded guilty to four forgery counts brought against him in Outagamie County.

Fifteen checks in all — totaling $400.70 and forged by Veach between May 25 and June 8 — were considered by Parnell Tuesday.

The four forged checks in this county were cashed early in June at four businesses in the Town of Hortonia. The others were issued at food stores, service stations and taverns in Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties.

Brian Zink, 24, Oshkosh, was previously placed on three years probation with the State Department of Health and Social Services for cashing the checks forged by Veach.

Mercury Still Found in Fish

Tests Offer Little Hope for Ban on Wisconsin River

MADISON (AP)—Samples of fish taken from the Wisconsin River give little hope the stream will have its "fishing for fun only" ban lifted this summer, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has reported.

Preliminary results show that mercury pollution of the stream is still high enough that the one meal a week restriction on Wisconsin River fish will not be lifted, Francis Schraufnagel, DNR director of standards and surveys, said Tuesday.

A ban on all fishing on the stream was issued May 4 by Gov. Warren P. Knowles after tests showed dangerous concentrations of mercury in the river which were later traced to the Wyandotte Chemical Corp. plant in Port Edwards.

The mercury pollution was later reduced by some 99 per cent by the company and the ban was modified to recommend only one meal per week from Wisconsin River fish.

The department has announced it will conduct a series of public hearings in August aimed at establishing statewide standards for mercury pollution control.

Robert Schroeder, 46, route 3, Appleton, was fined $150 and costs Tuesday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. He pleaded guilty. County Judge Nick F. Schaefer revoked his driver's license for 90 days. Schroeder was cited June 28 at the corner of State Highways 156 and 47 after a property damage accident. A state patrolman made the arrest.

Sixty days in the Outagamie County jail under the Huber Law were ordered Tuesday for Harry Baird, 26, Green Bay, who was charged June 1 with driving while intoxicated and while his license was revoked in the 100 block of S. Appleton Street. He had been involved in an accident.

Baird pleaded guilty to the charges Tuesday in County Court Branch 2. Additionally, he was fined $150 and costs by County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, and ordered to serve two extra days in the county jail for failure to submit to a breathalyzer test. His driving rights were revoked for an additional year.

Charges against Richard Melchert, route 1, Black Creek, were dropped Tuesday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. He had been charged with reckless use of a firearm in connection with a March 17 incident in Black Creek in which he allegedly shot a cat belonging to a Black Creek couple. Assistant Dist. Atty. Joel Seymour told the court the couple desired to drop the complaint against Melchert.

Probation Set For 2 Youths

Pair Attempted Armed Robbery With Can Opener

Two 18-year-old rural Waupaca County youths, found guilty by a circuit Court jury June 30 of attempted armed robbery, were placed on three years probation Tuesday to the State Department of Health and Social Services.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell stayed a three year sentence to the state reformatory at Green Bay for Ronald M. McKivitt, route 1, Fremont, and Jeffrey Thiel, rural Weyauwega.

The youths were arrested early on March 5 by Appleton police, shortly after they attacked Robert C. Kleinhans, 19, as the boy walked to his downtown apartment at 123 1/2 W. College Ave. about 1 a.m.

The pair was armed with a can opener and switchblade knife at the time of the attack, though testimony during trial revealed that the knife was not used. Kleinhans testified that McKivitt held the can opener to his throat and demanded "your money or your life."

The youths lived in Appleton at the time. They were also ordered by Parnell to pay court costs. Thiel must undergo counseling as a result of the incident.

"There's real meat in new TRAIL CALL"

can your dry dog food say that?

Not a chance! New Trail Call is the one and only dry dog food sold in this area with real meat in every bite. Plus plenty of nutrients to help keep your little friend healthy and strong. Of course, Trail Call gives you all the benefits of ordinary dry food. It can be fed dry or moist. And there's no mixing, refrigerating or can opening. But that's where the similarity ends. Trail Call's a new breed! Comes in the shape of tasty little ribbons that look kind of like puffed meat. The ribbons absorb liquid faster than old fashion chunk style and send out a real meat aroma in the process. Lots of real meat taste, too. No question about it, New Trail Call is the finest dog food you can buy. Yet, it costs less and gives your dog more each feeding. What more can we say?

Explosion Mars Cooling Off at U. of Kansas

Building of Credit Bureau Has Hole Blasted in Wall

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A brief calm in this university city — scene of two gunfire deaths in less than a week — was shattered early today by an explosion near an area where there have been repeated confrontations between police and a group of youths.

The blast knocked a two-foot hole in a wall of the Credit Bureau building and shattered windows in residences more than 100 yards away. There were no injuries.

Robert Wolfe of the Kansas fire marshal's office said, "We've found fragments of a soap detergent box. We feel certain it was packed with black powder though the stuff will be analyzed."

The incident marred a "let's cool it" understanding between Kansas Highway Patrol Supt. William Albott, George Kimball, leader of a group living at the edge of the University of Kansas campus who refer to themselves as "the street people," and a number of campus ministers, students and faculty members.

Police Absence
Albert had told Kimball and the Rev. Donald Conrad a Lutheran campus minister, Tuesday night that police would stay out of the area if all remained quiet.

The area at the north edge of the campus was the scene of a confrontation Monday night in which Harry Nicholas Rice, 18, was struck and killed by a bullet while running with a group of the "street people" from police.

There was no official indication where the shot came from.

The confrontation marked the fourth straight night in which some students from the university, some former students and other young people sharing a hippie-style environment had brought out police and firemen by setting trash fires and creating disturbances.

Fatal Shooting
Many of the youths said the activity was a protest against the fatal shooting of Donald Rick Dowdell, 19, a Negro, last Thursday night in the black community. Police said he was fleeing from officers and was shot when he stepped from a car with a gun in his hand.

Gov. Robert Docking made a surprise visit to the troubled area Tuesday.

He met with city officials and later issued a proclamation of emergency which forbids the possession, sale, carrying and use of firearms and other dangerous weapons and restricts the sale of gasoline except for motor vehicles.

Docking also ordered 25 highway patrol troopers into Lawrence to assist police.

husband, Merrill, also an aquanaut, presented the drink. Right is Margaret Lucas. They ended their Tektite II mission after spending two weeks on the ocean floor as the first team of women aquanauts. (AP Wirephoto)

Consumer Boycott Threatened For Better Migrant Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer watchdog group has threatened to lead a boycott against famous-name companies such as Coca-Cola unless the firms act immediately to improve the working and living conditions of migrant farm laborers.

Philip W. Moore, counsel to Ralph Nader's Project on Corporate Responsibility, accused the soft drink firm of exploiting Mexican-Americans in testimony Tuesday before the Senate migratory labor subcommittee.

Whether the boycott will be put into effect, he added, will depend on the firm's testimony before the same panel later this week. Moore said he thought "Coca-Cola wants to do something to avoid this problem."

Substandard Housing

Moore pointed to what he said was substandard housing Coca-Cola's Minute Maid subsidiary maintained for its workers in Florida citrus fields as examples of "this problem."

The subcommittee, headed by Minnesota Democrat Walter F. Mondale, has invited Coca-Cola representatives to testify when the hearings resume Friday.

In other testimony, the Senate Democratic nominee from Texas, Lloyd Bentsen, was described by two witnesses as a wealthy "exploiter" of migrant farm workers.

Bentsen, who faces Republican

George Bush in the November election, denied he or his family-owned corporation had ever exploited farm workers in the Rio Grande Valley.

Bentsen's family has extensive land holdings in the region. Moore charged, and said that, with other family-owned corporations, they "have failed in the last 20 years to take any meaningful step to eliminate the conditions which their corporate decisions impose daily on the lives of migrant workers."

Wealthy "Exploiters"

Roger M. Dunwell, a lawyer from New York who worked last year with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee in Mission, Tex., named both Bentsen and former Texas Gov. Allen Shivers as among the wealthy exploiters in the valley.

Mondale noted Moore's testimony was the first about the intricacies of corporate ownership of the fields that often isolates migrants at the bottom of society.

"It's possible to get rich on poverty these days," he said.

When talking about human exploitation, however, Mondale said the exploiters must be exposed and the situation must be corrected.

Cost of Product

"The cost of a decent life ought to be incorporated in the cost of every product," he said.

Episode in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — An American soldier tried to hijack an airliner from Saigon to Hong Kong by threatening the crew with knives today but surrendered to police after officials foiled his plan by letting the air out of the plane's tires.

The only reported injury in the two-hour episode at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport was a Korean flight engineer on the Air Force plane, who suffered a minor guard at the Army's 71st Evacuation Hospital. The soldier finally walked off the plane with his hands in the air and surrendered.

The soldier tried to take over the plane just as it landed at Saigon, by threatening the pilot, copilot and flight engineer with the two knives.

He allowed the other 63 passengers, a steward and a stewardess to leave the plane after it came to a stop but held the

"I don't think that's too revolutionary in this day and age."

He said the strategy of paying starvation wages to farm workers has been costly for rural America, not only in the health of the workers but in the spinoff economic benefits to local communities which result when the residents are well paid.

A Florida Mexican-American, Rudolfo Juarez, 31, told Mondale he has picked crops since he was five.

"The conditions haven't improved in all those years," Juarez said. "We still are being exploited by farmers, crew leaders, insurance companies, stores—you name it, the whole society is against us."

Massachusetts Asks Ruling on War's Legality

Constitutionality Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state of Massachusetts urged the Supreme Court today to rule that participation of the United States in the Vietnam war is unconstitutional.

In a suit that named Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird as defendant, the state said the executive branch of the federal government is acting illegally in committing American troops to the Southeast Asia war.

The plea for a ruling was authorized by the state legislature in April when it approved a bill challenging the federal government's authority to conduct undeclared wars such as Vietnam.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent, a Republican, signed the bill into law immediately and the state attorney general, Robert H. Quinn, a Democrat, followed up with a suit in the high court.

The central legal point the state is pressing is that without a declaration of war by Congress, the President is acting unconstitutionally when he sends troops into Vietnam to fight.

Accept Suit

Before the court could rule on this issue it would have to decide whether it will accept the Massachusetts suit. It was filed directly in the Supreme Court instead of coming to the court in the form of an appeal from a lower court decision.

The Supreme Court has consistently refused up to now to consider appeals in which the legality of the Vietnam War was questioned. Two justices, William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart, have dissented from this refusal.

For Massachusetts to win even a hearing the state will need the acquiescence of at least four of the nine justices.

Quinn's brief seeks to overcome resistance within the court to grappling with this issue. He said, "This court has indicated in the past that it will not sidestep a question merely because it is controversial."

Besides, he added, "Since this court is the only body which can resolve the present controversy definitively, it must do so."

In an interview, the attorney general explained why he was suing in the Supreme Court instead of at a lower judicial level.

Quick Action

"We want it done quickly," he said. "Also we hope this suit will serve as a catalyst to prompt action by the legislative and executive branches."

As for his personal views of the war, Quinn said: "the more research we do in the case, the more convinced we are of the validity of our argument—the Vietnam War cannot be fought by executive fiat."

The Massachusetts law seeks to bar service by Massachusetts residents in war zones in the absence of a congressional declaration of war.

In the brief, Quinn said: "Review of the pertinent portions of the debates of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 demonstrates conclusive that ultimate control over the military was accorded to Congress by the exclusive grant of war-making power to that branch."

Repel Attacks

"The debates do not indicate that the power accorded the president to repel sudden attacks can be used as authorization for the present level of military commitment on the part of the United States in Vietnam."

"Furthermore, there is nothing in the President's other powers such as those incident to his role as commander-in-chief or chief executive which would authorize the acts and actions of the executive branch in committing the United States to fight in Vietnam."

"The Commonwealth concludes by reviewing various congressional actions, including the so-called Gulf of Tonkin resolution and appropriations measures, and argues that none of those actions manifests an intent on the part of Congress to authorize or ratify the level of hostilities in which the United States has engaged in Vietnam."

The state law provides that Massachusetts servicemen may refuse duty unless there has been a declaration of war by Congress.

Last month, a draftee from Walpole, Mass., challenged the Army's authority to send him to Vietnam in the face of the Massachusetts law.

Two justices, William J. Brennan Jr., and Byron R. White declined to block shipment of the soldier, William A. Bain.

Commandos Seize Jetliner in Athens

ATHENS (AP) — Arab commandos seized an Olympic Airways jetliner with at least 61 persons aboard at Athens airport today and threatened to blow it up unless the Greek government released two Jordanians awaiting trial for a terror bombing.

Aristotle Onassis, owner of the airline, came to the airport, spent a half hour in the control tower and left, authorities said.

An airline spokesman in Beirut, said the plane left the Lebanese capital earlier with 53 passengers including five Americans, four Greeks, three French and one Australian.

Stylanos Patokas, the No. 2 man in the Greek regime, rushed to the airport control tower with several Arab ambassadors as police ringed the Olympic Airways Boeing 727 on Front said, "We know nothing about this. We have nothing to do with this."

machine guns and hand grenades, were reported to have demanded the release of the Jordanians within three hours.

The plane—of Aristotle Onassis' airline—came from Beirut, and the manager of the airline there said most of the passengers were Greek or Lebanese.

"But there were three Syrians aboard, and these may well be the hijackers," he added.

The commandos were probably members of the leftist Palestine Popular Struggle Front, said a spokesman in Beirut for the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. The two Jordanians held in Athens are members of the Struggle Front.

However, in Amman, a spokesman for the Struggle Front said, "We know nothing about this. We have nothing to do with this."

Imprisoned Huey Newton Still Policymaker

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — From behind the 14-foot fences and steel bars of a state prison, Huey P. Newton guides the militant Black Panther party toward what he envisions as a revolution within his lifetime.

"I decide the final policy on everything in the party," said Newton, Panther co-founder and minister of defense. "I communicate with the party through visits by my family."

The smiling, soft-spoken Newton, 28, has spent the past 2½ years in prison for killing an Oakland policeman. He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years for the Oct. 26, 1967, shooting of officer

John Frey.

New Trial

On May 21 the California District Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on ground that the Superior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors.

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."

But I am optimistic about winning the final battle because the people always win."

As the Panthers' chief theoretician, Newton said revolution has constantly occupied his mind at the California Men's Colony, a sprawling medium security prison at the foot of coastal hills near here.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover recently called the Black Panthers the nation's most dangerous organization and accused it of fomenting terrorism in cities and on campuses.

Most Dangerous

Newton commented: "The most dangerous groups to the people of the world are the Pentagon, including the CIA, the U.S. military, the local police,

the avaricious businessman and the lying politicians."

"All are guilty of crimes against the people and the verdict is death."

A party poster picturing Newton on an African wicker throne bearing a shotgun and a spear has been sold nationally. But he said, "I'm against violence. I'm not a violent man. All revolutionaries are against violence."

"There's a distinction between the violence of the aggressor and the self-defense of the attacked."

"We must defend ourselves against poor housing, police brutality and all things that

As for the poster, he said, laughing, "I don't think the party's image has changed since then, but I hope mine has. I don't like that particular poster, because it makes me look like a monarch. We have a democratic party."

Newton said his primary goals include the freedom of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale, charged with murder of a Panther in New Haven, Conn., and the safe return to the United States of Eldridge Cleaver, Panther minister of information who has been a fugitive since he

Nixon Asks France, Turkey Curb Dope Flow

Not Very Successful So Far; New HEW Head
Goes to Capitol Hill to Push Welfare Bill

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Nixon's backstage but thus far unsuccessful diplomatic effort to reduce the flow of heroin into the U.S. is so deadly serious that he has written a personal, confidential letter to another head of state: President Georges Pompidou of France.
Mr. Nixon's letter to the French President appealed for a crackdown on heroin processing plants in Marseilles (illegal in France) Pompidou sent back a quick and sympathetic reply, but that scarcely helped the situation dramatically.

The sad fact is that the French police have not yet made deep penetration of the underground network of small heroin factories. These sub-rosa plants are still turning raw opium and morphine into finished heroin for smuggling into the U.S.

The President's quiet diplomatic offensive to reduce the flow of heroin into the U.S. has been no more successful with the Turkish government, despite persistent appeals for a drastic cutback in the number of provinces legally able to grow the poppy. The source of heroin is a sticky substance in the poppy pod, which hardens into raw opium — the base of all opium-family hard drugs.

In his call for help to the Turks, Mr. Nixon has pointedly recalled the major U.S. program of aid to Turkey in the days of the Greek-Turkish aid program, when Soviet pressure threatened to topple the Turkish government. The U.S. drug crisis, Mr. Nixon has said, is scarcely less dangerous to this country's future.

Despite this dramatic appeal the Turks flatly refused to ban all poppy-planting. The most they conceded to the U.S. in a June 30 government decree is a reduction from nine to seven in the number of provinces that can legally plant the poppy.

Even that reduction could be misleading. While reducing the overall acreage, the government put no restrictions on planting within the approved seven provinces.

A footnote: Both the French and German interior ministers started personal negotiations with Atty. Gen. John Mitchell in the past few days in an effort to coordinate better international controls over illicit drug traffic. Activist Richardson

Elliot Richardson, the new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), tipped off his personal style recently by paying a private visit to a key Capitol Hill staffer critical of President Nixon's welfare reform bill.

Richardson's predecessor at HEW, Robert Finch, had kept arm's-length from lobbying activities. But Richardson did not hesitate to visit Thomas Vail, chief counsel of the Senate Finance Committee where the welfare reform has been bottled up.

Some protocol-conscious bureaucrats at HEW felt that a cabinet member would demean himself by lobbying a lowly congressional staffer. What they overlook is the fact that Vail influences both Democratic and Republican members of the finance committee and has been the source of much senatorial criticism of the program.

School District No. 1 Annual Meeting On $650,228 Budget

LITTLE CHUTE — The annual meeting of electors of School District No. 1, Little Chute and Town of Vandenberg, will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the State Grade School gym, according to Miss Helen Koehn, school district clerk.

Voters will be asked to vote on a $650,228 budget and discuss other matters which may be brought up from the floor. No school elections are necessary this year, the new board members having been elected at the regular April election.

200 Additional Beds Grand Army Home to Dedicate Nursing Unit

KING — The Grand Army Home for Veterans will add 200 new nursing care beds with the dedication of the second new nursing care facility put into service within the past two years, at 2 p.m., Aug. 2.

A nationally known speaker will give the principal address at the ceremonies, according to John R. Moses, secretary of the State Department of Veterans Affairs.

Wisconsin's famous First Brigade Civil War band, appearing in vintage uniforms and playing authentic 1860 instruments will also take part. They will play from manuscript sheet music obtained from the Library of Congress.

Guests from local, state and national levels of government and veterans circles are expected to attend. The public is invited.

Building in Use
The five story, $3.2 million building began accepting resident nursing care patients in May, and moved its administration headquarters to the ground floor of one of the three wings of the building that same month.

The top four floors will be devoted to nursing care residents. General purpose rooms, a dining hall, and building and grounds offices will occupy the balance of the ground floor.

Funds for the building are accumulated through a reserve account in which federal per diem payments to the state for its care of veterans is deposited. A building program of matching funds enabled the Department of Veterans Affairs to apply for and obtain the additional money needed for the nursing care buildings, without the need of applying for state tax funds, explained Moses.

Federal Funds
The entire building program for the state veterans home is being financed in this matter, he said, except for the activities building which has been funded entirely through gifts and bequests made to the Home.

Current plans call for the construction of housing for nurses, the activities building, and a new 125-bed hospital to replace the present 96-bed hospital built in 1929.

Completion of these projects will mean that a $10 million building program has been created since 1966 to care for the state veterans, and all has been or will be financed by federal payments for veterans care, Moses said.

A footnote: Another difference between Richardson and Finch involves federal patronage. Richardson has decided not to seek White House staff clearance for appointments to minor commissions and advisory boards, ending a nuisance that caused endless headaches for Finch.

U.S.-Korean Troop Talks in Second Day

Withdrawal Called Nonnegotiable by Washington Envoy

HONOLULU (AP) — U.S. and South Korean delegates enter the second and final day of defense talks today centering on American plans to withdraw 20,000 troops from the Asian republic.

Top U.S. defense officials said on the eve of the talks that the troop withdrawal was nonnegotiable.

South Korean Defense Minister Jung Nae Huk, the leading Korean negotiator, has said he is sure Premier Chung Il-Kwon will carry through with a threat that he and his entire Cabinet will resign if the withdrawals are made.

General Information

Only general information was released about the first day's three-hour meeting. The only questions a spokesman would answer were on how long the session lasted and the number of persons taking part.

However, diplomatic sources said it was understood that hard-line issues would not be taken up at the first meeting. A communique was expected late today at the conclusion of the talks.

U.S. sources said the Americans, led by Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard, assured the Koreans that the United States is "well aware of provocation and threats to the national security which the Republic of Korea endures."

The sources said Jung told the American delegates he was sympathetic and appreciative that more than 50,800 young Americans shed blood in the Korean conflict.

Blood Till

Sources said the U.S. delegates responded by saying they are appreciative of the "blood ties in battle" America has with Korea.

The troop withdrawal plan calls for nearly a one-third reduction of the 62,800 U.S. troops. The United States plans to compensate for the cut with a massive upgrading of South Korea's war arsenal.

U.S. defense officials say North Korea does not have the present capability to launch an invasion of the South such as the June 1950 attack which scattered the South Korean army.

But Chung said recently that in 1969 the North Koreans increased their army by 60,000 men and received 300 tanks and 150 warplanes from the Russians, bringing their air force to 900 planes. North Korea is believed to have more than 400,000 men under arms.

State Opening Case Against Manson Clan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state says it knows why beautiful actress Sharon Tate and six others were slain last August, and "the motive is even more bizarre than the killings themselves."

That motive, Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said Tuesday, won't be disclosed until opening arguments and testimony begin Friday in the trial of four persons charged with murder-conspiracy.

The prosecution will put 40 to 50 persons on the stand. But the spotlight will be on pretty, petite Linda Kasabian, 21, who reportedly has promised to tell details of the killings in exchange for her freedom.

Immunity Likely

Mrs. Kasabian, sandy-haired mother of two infants, is expected to be granted immunity from prosecution after she testifies.

Bugliosi said she would take the stand Monday and was expected to testify for "three, four or five days." He added, "It will be key testimony."

Mrs. Kasabian also is charged with murder-conspiracy but has been granted a separate trial. She was a member of the nomadic, hippie-style "family" led by a shaggy-haired, bearded ex-convict, Charles Manson, accused of planning the killings.

Manson, 35, is on trial with three shapely women followers, Susan Atkins, 21, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22.

Testimony Expected

Mrs. Kasabian, who has been under heavy guard in jail since it became known she would testify for the state, is expected to tell how she went with other members of the Manson group to the two homes where the killings occurred.

She is said to have waited outside Miss Tate's rented tomato-red house while the pregnant actress and four visitors were stabbed and shot. The next night, Mrs. Kasabian also reportedly waited outside the home of market owner Leno LaBianca while he and his wife Rosemary were slain.

Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence O'Brien has a kiss and a handshake for his new vice chairman, Mary Lou Burg of West Bend, as he introduces her to the press Tuesday in

Nixon's Political Talent to be Exercised Before Elections

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I am a political man," President Nixon told his latest news conference—and he intends to prove it over the next 100 days.

That's about the time left before the November elections.

Of recent date, Nixon has been paying considerable attention to the voting hinterland—the Middle America where, according to the Nixon battle plan for the 1970 elections, the "silent majority" resides.

Just Tuesday, Nixon announced that in addition to visiting Fargo, N.D., for a conference with five governors, he will be going on to Salt Lake City for a meeting with the leaders of the Mormon church and, for good measure, will be conferring with anticrime specialists in Denver as he makes his way to and from the western White House at San Clemente, Calif. It all began last month when Nixon went to St. Louis to talk to the U.S. Jaycees.

His audience gave him perhaps the biggest reception he had since becoming President, but more important, street crowds in that normally Democratic city were large and enthusiastic.

Nixon followed the St. Louis triumph with an announcement that the best way to help Republican candidates this year was to make "as good a record as possible in Washington."

The chief executive said then he had no plans for any partisan speeches during the campaign—that attention to foreign policy crises was paramount.

However, Nixon earlier this month went to Louisville, Ky., to meet with governors of 12 Appalachian states—and be greeted by enthusiasts along his route from the airport. He followed the Kentucky visit with a jaunt across the Ohio River to Cincinnati for the all star baseball game.

All's Well

All went well. Next will be Fargo, N.D., to confer with governors of that state, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska.

Then Nixon flies to Utah for the meeting with Mormon leaders, and to sit through a portion of Salt Lake City's "Pioneer Day Stampede" before flying on to his seaside villa in Southern California.

The White House announced Tuesday that an added starter in the presidential party for the trip would be secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, author of the celebrated letter that speculated whether or not the President really had any understanding of young people.

Nixon plans to stay in California until Aug. 3, when he will start back to Washington via Denver. He meets there with directors of planning agencies that decide how to parcel out federal aid to police forces and courts.

Obviously, Nixon plans to make more such "nonpolitical" stops on his varied journeys between now and November. He may even visit New York. Phil- go.

Britons Work On Congestion At Westminster

Stopwatches, Noise
Meters Tune in on Tourist Patterns

LONDON (AP) — They set up noise meters in Westminster Abbey this week, along with stopwatches, in an effort to find out how the ancient cathedral can serve tourists better.

The noise meters bogged down when bus loads of tourists began to converge from opposite directions. For the next hour the study team could not get a meter in edgewise as guides began to lecture in Italian, Spanish, French and German.

"We could not make any observations," said a consultant, who explained the aim of the tests:

"Our object is to make the Abbey a more pleasing place to visit. We want to stop the frustration and make sure the visitors get the information they want."

The stopwatches will record, for example, how long the average tourist spends at the Unknown Warrior's Tomb or the Coronation Chair. Dr. Eric Abbot of the cathedral said: "Millions come here every year and the number increases. It is now the tourist's No. 1 attraction in London and the high-season congestion is a great problem. We want to stop it before it reaches crisis level."

Plan to Triple Dose of Iron in Bread Challenged as Harmful

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three doctors say that tripling the amount of iron in bread could harm more people than it helps.

The Food and Drug Administration recently proposed such an increase to combat iron deficiency. The baking industry, American Medical Association and American Dietetic Association support the proposal.

But two Boston medical professors and an upstate New York general practitioner have challenged the proposal in letters to the FDA that raise the issue of tolerance to iron.

The doctors, the only ones on record against the proposal, say there is no firm medical evidence to confirm that iron deficiency is a major health problem.

Harm Men

Nor is there enough evidence to satisfy them that adult men, who use less iron than women and children, will not be harmed by consuming much larger quantities of iron in their bread, the opponents say.

Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the American Medical Association's council on food and nutrition, has called iron deficiency anemia and the resultant fatigue and low resistance to disease "one of the major nutritional problems of teen-age girls, and indeed adult women as well."

In a 1965 survey, the U.S. Department of Agriculture found that 25 per cent of boys 12 to 14, and 38 per cent of women and girls 9 to 54 received less than recommended allowances of iron. The survey showed shortages were more severe among the poor.

Not Anemia

But the opponents of the bread enrichment proposal note that iron shortage is not the same as anemia. They question whether the often undetectable evidence of iron shortage justifies increasing iron in bread.

One opponent, Dr. William H. Crosby, a professor of medicine and chief of blood studies at New England Medical Center Hospitals, said doctors agree that the body does a poor job of working off excess iron. The mineral concentrates in the liver and other glands, possibly leading to glandular failure, he said.

"No one is in a position to assure us that a large segment of the population would not be placed at increased risk from absorption and storage of unnecessary iron," said Crosby.

Crosby cited heavy iron consumption by South African Bantus, whose methods of cooking and brewing increase daily iron intake to 50 or 100 milligrams per day per person.

Iron Accumulation

"About half the population is found, at death, to have serious accumulations of iron in liver, pancreas, heart and other susceptible organs and often these organs are severely injured," said Crosby.

The recommended minimum daily requirement for menstruating women is 7 to 20 milligrams. For men the requirement is 5 to 10 milligrams.

The FDA proposal would allow between 50 and 60 milligrams of iron in a one-pound loaf of enriched white bread. The present allowable level is 13 to 18.5 milligrams. Similar changes are proposed for flour. Although the American Medical Association submitted little evidence on the tolerance issue, it estimated the proposal would raise the amount of iron consumed by men to what it called a maximum and safe level of 30 milligrams per day.

Source of Danger

But Crosby said, "Even 30 milligrams of iron per day may be a source of danger to the average male."

The validity of the 30 milligram estimate also is challenged by Crosby and his fellow dissidents—Dr. Margaret Ann Krikker, an Albany, N.Y., general practitioner whose husband has a liver disease aggravated by excess iron; and Dr. Frederick Stohman Jr., director of medicine and research at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Boston.

They suggested the 1965 Agriculture Department study, from which the figure was extrapolated, was too limited.

Mrs. Krikker warned that the proposal also fails to take into account the fact that different people absorb iron in different amounts and at different rates.

She cited an AMA committee on iron deficiency, which concluded in 1968: "Further studies are urgently needed to define more clearly the incidence of iron deficiency in the United States, to clarify further the availability of food iron and the actual dietary iron intake of the population, and finally to determine in the male the safe upper limits of iron supplementation in the diet."

"No such further studies have been published," protested Mrs. Krikker.

One person endorsing the tripling of iron in bread and flour, however, was Dr. Clement A. Finch, the University of Washington blood specialist who chaired the AMA committee on iron deficiency.

FDA officials say they haven't decided yet whether a hearing on the issue is necessary.

GI Drug Amnesty Declared

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army is trying to get GIs in Vietnam who use marijuana or other drugs to turn themselves in and get help. The Army promises that those who do will not be punished.

The new "amnesty program" has been adopted by the 4th Infantry Division in the central highlands. Other U.S. units in Vietnam are expected to try the program, which is already in operation at several bases in the United States.

To date, 129 drug users in the 4th Division have turned themselves in. None has been punished, officers of the division say, and their names have not been recorded on military police reports of drug investigations.

With marijuana readily available in Vietnam, the Army for years has been concerned about the drug problem among its men.

Ask Help

Under the amnesty program, a soldier may ask for help from any chaplain or provost marshal. Initially, he gets counseling from the chaplain once a week, or more often if that appears necessary. If counseling alone doesn't work, the habitual marijuana user or drug addict is sent to the division psychiatrist.

The initial step is to talk the problem out in depth with the patient," says Maj. Charles Talk, the 4th Division psychiatrist.

"If it is found that the person is not physiologically addicted—if his system has formed no dependency on the drug—then we don't have to gear him down with a substitute, less harmful drug."

Information on the men is kept secret.

Confidential Problems

"We want the man to feel that his problems are strictly confidential," said Talk. "He must have confidence in somebody whom he feels he can trust."

up of the provost marshal, the division surgeon and the division chaplain. The council meets regularly with officers and higher ranking noncommissioned officers to discuss the drug problem and ways of improving the amnesty program.

One suggestion is a voluntary questionnaire asking the drug user such questions as "where did you get it?" and "where did you first use it?"

Military police teams also give lectures to new arrivals of the dangers of drugs.

Larger Expense Accounts Suggested for Legislators

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Wisconsin lawmakers deserve larger expense accounts but their pay should not be raised to compensate for expenses they are not now allowed, a special compensation committee has agreed.

The committee, studying possible pay hikes for state legislators in the next session, recommended that expense allowances also be raised — while recognizing that they have no power to do anything about it.

The council, headed by Wayne Hood of LaCrosse and made up of six leading business executives in the state, is making the study under provisions of a law which allows the legislature to receive pay raises without having the issue presented for a floor vote.

Public Critical
The system was devised after recurrent blasts from the public at lawmakers who voted for pay hikes in the past.

After making detailed studies, the compensation council is supposed to make possible pay hike recommendations to the state personnel director and board, which in turn forwards its recommendations to the legislature's Joint Committee on Finance.

If that committee agrees to the pay increases, the boosts are effected, without the vast bulk of the lawmakers who do not serve on the finance committee being forced to vote on the issue.

The compensation committee refused Tuesday to release the full results of a poll of lawmakers about their earnings and time spent on legislative business as compared with other occupations held by the lawmakers, but they discussed it in open session.

See Study
Hood said that he wanted to make sure that the legislators had a chance to see the study, done by Harold Sharpe of the University of Wisconsin Survey Research Laboratory, before releasing the study to the press.

Sharpe termed it a question of "public relations" with the legislature. The study was done with public funds for the compensation council, which is a public body, and not for the legislature.

Replying to the survey were 112 of the 130 surviving members of the 1969 legislature.

About two-thirds of them had been members of the legislature four years ago when the last such study was done.

Hood was asked whether that fact, coupled with the realization that harder legislative work reports would lead to higher salaries, might lead to exaggerations on the part of lawmakers.

Ask Study of Reformatory Farm

Proposal Would Shift Operations To Oneida Area

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A proposed study of the possibility of moving the Green Bay reformatory dairy farm to the Oneida Farm, 17 miles outside of the city was presented Tuesday to a state building unit.

A subcommittee of the state Building Commission considered but took no action on a request by the Department of Health and Social Services for the release of $5,000 for the study of the proposal.

The request for the $5,000 will be acted upon July 27 by the full commission, which is expected to receive a recommendation on action from the subcommittee which heard the request Tuesday.

The project, which would include the sale of the almost 100 acres of dairy farm land adjacent to the reformatory and the transfer of those operations to the Oneida beef and swine farm, could total either $289,000 or $342,000.

Lower Costs
The cost would reach the lower figure if the department decides in the study not to carry on its own milk processing operations.

The subcommittee was told by department officials that the transfer of farm operations to the rural site is necessary because of the residential nature of the area surrounding the reformatory, and because of the pending location of the Interstate Highway which will end efficient operations at the site.

State Sen. Fred Risser, D-Madison, a member of the subcommittee, said that the department also should consider the possibility of merging operations of some of the 10 separate farms it operates to provide therapy for inmates and prisoners and for food supplies for the statewide system of welfare institutions.

makers in an attempt to boost their own income.

Hood said that the "inference" could be drawn that such results might take place, but that the survey asked detailed questions in an attempt to avoid that result.

Show Work Boosts
The survey did show substantial work increases — as interpreted by the lawmakers themselves — between the 1966 study and that done in 1970;

The attorney general said in a legal opinion in 1968 that the compensation committee had no power to consider making changes in expense allowances under the law creating it.

Hood said that the opinion was being recognized, but that the council should again recommend to the legislature that it change its own expense allowances. The council agreed.

The council had made that recommendation in 1968, but the legislature — which would have had to vote as a whole on the question — refused to act on the recommendation.

Sharpe said that he interpreted the survey results to mean that the average lawmaker was spending a considerably greater portion of his time on legislative business and less time on outside occupations both while in and out of formal session.

He based that interpretation on the percentage of lawmaker income drawn from legislative work.

Proves Nothing
William Brenckle of Waukesha said that the comment was "interesting but it doesn't prove a damn thing."

If a lawmaker finds that he is satisfied with his legislative income and that his total income is sufficient to meet his needs, he might not choose to seek higher additional outside sources of income, said Brenckle.

Lawmakers are now paid a basic salary of $8,900 a year on the assumption that it is a half-time job. In addition, they draw expense allowances of $15 a day while in session and monthly expense allowances of $25 for representatives and $40 for senators, plus additional bonuses for every additional county in their district.

They receive travel expenses for legislative business, and when not in session can receive "actual and necessary" expenses as interpreted by the legislature for their visits to Madison and elsewhere in the state on business.

Extra Expenses
A recent survey showed that a number of lawmakers had cleared more than $1,000 in such extra expense payments in the first half of this year, when the legislature has not been in session.

Sharpe said that the survey showed that while in 1966, 66 per cent of the lawmakers expected to spend more time in session next time they met, the level had climbed to 74 per cent this year.

The lawmakers also said they spent more time on the floor working in the 1970 study than in 1966, he said, by a margin of 36 per cent to 29 per cent.

In 1966 about 52 per cent said their major source of income was the legislative salary, while this year 65 per cent gave that reply, said Sharpe.

The average lawmaker gets 65 per cent of his total income from legislative work, said Sharpe, which is consistent with the finding that they are spending more time on legislative work, he added.

Outside Income
Seven per cent of the lawmakers said that they had no outside income this year, and 21 per cent said they did no outside work, although they drew outside income. That latter figure is up from four per cent in the 1966 study. When not in session in 1966, the lawmakers estimated that they spent 18 hours on legislative work and 35 hours on outside work for a 53-hour work week, said Sharpe.

In 1970, the work week had dropped to 51 hours, with 28 hours spent on legislative work and 23 hours on outside employment while not in session.

What to Look for in Antique Car Bargains

Antique Car Bargains—III
BY SYLVIA PORTER
(Last in a series of three articles)

Antique car prices have mushroomed so fantastically just in the past decade, that some models are now selling for as much as $80,000. So valuable your own portfolio of securities profitably.

In the $2,500-and-under price range, says Craft, Auburns, Franklins and Reos are still available at reasonable prices. Also, most makes of closed cars, which are currently less fashionable, may still be available in this lower price range. For example: Chrysler Imperials, 1926-34; LaSalles, 1927-32; all Buick models of the late '20's and 1930's; and big Packards, Lincolns and Cadillacs of this period.

Look for These
Now here are specific suggestions for the antique car investor from Ed Jurist, president of the Vintage Car Store:

Pre-1935 Plymouth roadsters; Buick convertibles of the 1930's; big Packard and Cadillac sedans of any era; Pierce Arrow sedans and coupes.

All of these (and many others) are currently out of fashion, and, partly as a result of this, unrestored examples of all of them are available today at prices ranging from $300 to $3,000. BUT—if you want to speculate by buying these (or if you're lucky enough to have one sitting around in your garage), remember that the best-looking, the most elegantly designed, the ones which were originally manufactured in the smallest numbers are most likely to grow in value over the long run.

Trucks also are an area in which price appreciation well may take place in the years ahead, says Jurist — specifically pre-1920 U.S. mail trucks, beer trucks, flower delivery wagons, Black Marias, and fire trucks. In many cases you can get these in junk yards and elsewhere for $150 to $400 — but be prepared to put a lot of elbow grease into restoring them. Your rule among trucks is to find very early chain-drive ones with huge engines, and ones which are especially amusing and attractive looking. In from Craft on how to find any old car, on a trailer and begin towing it cross country, stopping at every possible opportunity at service stations, etc. Talk to as many people as possible; most men want to talk about old cars. If you do this, eventually somebody will say, "I know where there is a 1917 Cadillac," or "I know where you can get an old Ford for $200."

Stop and Talk
Third, a marvelous suggestion from Craft on how to find vintage cars is "load an old car, any old car, on a trailer and begin towing it cross country, stopping at every possible opportunity at service stations, etc. Talk to as many people as possible; most men want to talk about old cars. If you do this, eventually somebody will say, "I know where there is a 1917 Cadillac," or "I know where you can get an old Ford for $200."

Other Ideas
What if you can't find any bargains in these categories? Then look to the new-new frontiers. And where are Old private railroad cars... Early steam locomotives (or anything with a steam engine)... Antique aircraft...

For a mere $1,200 you can find and pick up a dilapidated pre-war open biplane and, if you can figure out how to restore it, you may be able to sell it to somebody else for $10,000.

Complete Puzzle to Win All-pro Baseball Game

BY CAPPY DICK

A new national grand prize is introduced today. It's Ideal Toy Corporation's exciting Official All-Pro Baseball Game, the closest thing to real major league baseball ever devised in table-game form.

Using the equipment contained in the big 16-by-19½ inch carton, two team and from that point forward real baseball excitement prevails. The equipment includes a playing field, a pitcher-batter selector, pegs, baseball and score sheets. The pitcher-batter selector is one of the most important features because it permits a battle of wits between the pitcher and batter just as in real baseball. Every other kind of major league excitement can be duplicated.

Five Official All-Pro Baseball Games by Ideal Toy will be awarded as the national grand prizes in today's contest, one for each of the five nearest and most original correct contest entries received from the cities where this column is published, including the Fox Cities.

In addition, there will be local qualifying prizes, one of which a contest entry must win to progress to the national judging. Each local prize winner will receive a set of 18 miniature plastic baseball players, plus two umpires. These are stand-up miniatures that can be glued to pop bottle caps. One set will be awarded for each of the 5 nearest and most original correct contest entries.

Here's how to enter the contest: Figure out how to go from the word "Ball" to the word "Game" in the picture above, changing only one letter at a time. Here are hints. The word needed for the first blank means something bitter. For the next blank the word is a very high wind. The final word, of course, is "game."

When you have filled the blanks, clip out the picture, paste it on paper, print your name, address and Zip number under it and decorate the entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts. Address it to Cappy Dick's Midwest All-Pro Baseball Game Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Winners' names will be published here and their prizes will be shipped to them by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Tomorrow: How to play "39," a game with paper plates!

Change-a-word

managers will see that every play possible on a real baseball field can occur as the all-pro game progresses.

Fred Smoot, Neil Diamond Join Everlys

BY TV SCOUT
8 - 9 Channels 11-9 — Neil Diamond does a very good "Mr. Bojangles" on Johnny Cash Presents the Everly Brothers Show, which has another highlight: Fred Smoot showing us a man shaving with a straight razor, then with an electric razor when he is very hung over. Also outstanding is an a capella version of "Columbus Stockade Blues," done by the Everlys and the Statler Brothers.

6:30 - 8 Channel 5 — The Virginian has Trampas (Doug McClure) tracking down some bandits on an episode called "West." Guest stars Steve Cochran, Claude Aikens and James Brown fill Trampas with stories of the Old West, in which the "law of the six-gun" reigned. (R)

7 - 7:30 Channels 2-7 — Ronnie Schell, who is a very funny fellow, is in the Gomer Pyle — USMC spotlight as Gomer's friend Duke, such a funny fellow around the barracks that he decides to try his luck as a night club comic. (R)

7:30 - 8 Channels 11-9 Liz McIntyre (Denise Nicholas) is caught in the middle when she becomes involved with a student whose wishes conflict with her parents'. It happens on Room 222 where Ethel Block plays a student who only wants to be a beauty operator. (R)

8-9 Channel 5 — Des O'Connor hosts a n o t h e r entertainment-packed segment of the London-based Kraft Music Hall. This week his guests are impressionist George Kirby, Spanish singer Raphael, comedian Arte Johnson and British songstress Cledagh Rodgers.

9-10 Channel 5 — Then Came Bronson is well cast with Kurt Russell playing a baseball pitcher trying out for a majors. Kurt has often said he prefers playing baseball to acting, although he is good at both. (R)

10:30-11:30 Channel 2 — Forrest Tucker displays more of his acting skills than ordinarily on Medical Center. He is a former football great whose problem is a circulation disorder. (R)

4-H Show to Open Portage County Fair

STEVENS POINT — 4-H clubs will present a variety show of six acts at the Portage County Fair 8 p.m. Friday, opening night of the fair.

Wayne Schroeder, Portage County 4-H club agent, will be master of ceremonies of the grandstand show.

At the close of the show last year's fair queen, Jane Anderson, will crown the queen of this year.

Both horse racing and a horse show start the next day. The Boots and Saddles club with Mark Radloff judging will start show competition at 9 a.m.

Saturday evening racing starts with a trot for horses who haven't collected $1,000 in winnings and a pace for non-winners of $500.

Sunday afternoon is a trot for non-winners of $5,000 a pace for non-winners of $2,000 and a free for all pace or trot. The purse in all the races is $400.

TV MOVIES

3:30 p.m.
5 — "War Gods of Babylon" (1962) The king of Nineveh learns too late that his fight against the Babylonians is doomed to failure without assistance of the war gods. Howard Duff, Jackie Lane.

7:30 p.m.
34 — "Tokyo Joe" (1949) An Air Corps hero helps a Japanese mobster prevent treason charges against his former wife being made public. Humphrey Bogart, Alexander Knox, Sessue Hayakawa.

8:00 p.m.
2 — "From Here to Eternity" (1954) The great novel of the peacetime army in Hawaii is faithfully transferred to the screen, with all the love affairs, heroism, and brutality intact. Burt Lancaster, Montgomery Clift, Deborah Kerr, Frank Sinatra, Donna Reed.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, July 22, the 203rd day of 1970. There are 162 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1933, Wiley Post completed the first round-the-world solo flight in his plane the "Winnie Mae."
On this date:
In 1798, Napoleon Bonaparte captured the Egyptian city of Cairo.
In 1934, bank robber John Dillinger was shot to death by FBI agents in Chicago.
In 1937, the U.S. Senate defeated a proposal by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to reorganize and enlarge the Supreme Court.
In 1943, in World War II, Allied forces captured Palermo, Sicily.
In 1946, an uprising in Bolivia cost the life of the president, Gualberto Villarroel.
In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the presidents of 18 other Western Hemisphere nations signed the Panama Declaration, outlining the political and economic beliefs of American states.
Ten years ago — Argentina declared the Israeli ambassador to Buenos Aires unwelcome in the dispute over Israel's seizure of the Nazi, Adolf Eichmann, in Argentina.
Five years ago — Egypt arrested a prominent Cairo editor, Mustafa Amin, on charges of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.
One year ago — President Nixon began a 12-day trip to several Asian nations, Romania and Great Britain.
